"I NEVER THOUGHT I WOULD DO IT" CRIES SNOOK

PRISONERS DON'T KNOW HOW LUCKY THEY ARE—ROGERS

(Special To The News)
BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., Aug. 8.—Our big problem is this discontent in our prisons. Hardly a day passes that prisoners don't know how lucky they are. Some little outward sign of a prisoner's content, such as shooting a few guards, burning some buildings, and giving some hint publicly that they want to participate in this era of prosperity, through which we are struggling to make both ends meet.

It just looks like the boys in there don't appreciate how fortunate they are, to have no installment payments to meet.

The next political campaign is liable to be based on "bigger and better jails, for bigger and better prisoners," a satisfied prisoner means a satisfied nation.

Personally I would like to see "em" all turned out, as I have always felt we had the wrong bunch in there.

Yours,
WILL ROGERS.

PA NEW OBSERVES

Some of these mornings, residents in the vicinity of Mercer and Grant street are going to awake to the sound of automobiles crashing together. Motorists coming down Mercer street often let their machine go, knowing that there are stop signs at the intersection to halt traffic on Grant street, but in most cases, it doesn't halt.

Pa New observed a thoughtful motorist stop and replace the manhole cover at the corner of Mercer and Park, which had been dislodged by another machine striking the edge of the rim in passing over it.

Local Foreign War Vets are planning a huge picnic and initiation at the Carnegie auditorium in October, which promises to be an interesting and colorful event.

Spanish War Veterans of Northwestern Pennsylvania are gathering at Conneaut Lake for a big funfest and reunion the remainder of this week. New Castle will be well represented.

Grangers from Lawrence county will gather to renew acquaintances with their rural friends from all over Pennsylvania at Mars, tomorrow. J. Askey, host of Lawrence county, is one of the chief instigators of the gathering.

Now that the state, county, and railroad officials have decided on a location for the overhead crossing near Enon Valley, the road can be finished into Beaver county. The Enon crossing has claimed many lives and an overhead crossing will remove a dangerous traffic hazard.

This week there are a bunch of happy urchins at the Y camp. About 20 Seaside district boys are being treated to a camp life, and for their first occasion to experience such a thing.

Quarreled In Auto On Rifle Range; Hit Her With Hammer Again And Again

DOESN'T REMEMBER ALL THAT OCCURRED

Previous Coldness Of Professor Deserts Him As He Tells Story To Jury

By JAMES L. KILGALLEN
International News Service Staff Correspondent
COLUMBUS, O., Aug. 8.—Dr. James Howard Snook wept on the witness stand today as he confessed that he murdered Theora Hix, co-ed beauty, and described, with dramatic emphasis, exactly how he did it.

"I hit her with the hammer as we quarreled in the car, parked on the rifle range," he testified amid deadly silence in the crowded courtroom. "I hit her again and again."

Struck Her Again
"As she slid out of the car, I struck her one more blow with the hammer and she staggered and fell, her head striking the running board."

"The next thing I remember I was sitting on the running board, my head in my hands."

Snook, hitherto cold as ice on the stand, shivered. He seemed on the verge of a collapse.

For a full minute he paused, not uttering a word. The courtroom clock could be heard ticking. Then, removing his nose glasses and wiping his eyes, he moaned:

"Heaven knows, I was a good friend of mine. I never thought that I would do it."

Up to the point where he was asked to tell the jury of the murder on the rifle range, the former Ohio State University professor had told, with simple directness, all that had gone before. How he and Theora had been motoring; their various conversations; their quarrel after he parked the car on the range because he said he was going away over the week-end to a family reunion at Lebanon, O., his mother's home.

They Scuffled
Suddenly she seized him. They scuffled.

Snook paused. He could not go on. He bowed his head. His frame shook. He removed his glasses and wiped his eyes with his handkerchief. The jury waited. So did the spectators, the battery of newspapers with poised pencils and even the case-hardened court bailiffs.

"I hit her," Snook finally blurted out. "I hit her with the hammer that had been lying on the window ledge of the machine."

"She fought back. I struck her again. She was reaching for her (Continued On Page Nine)

Bus Passengers Have Close Call

Fifteen Passengers On Greyhound Bus Narrowly Escape Death In Flames

MT. LEBANON, Pa., Aug. 8.—Fifteen passengers today had a close call because of the alertness of one passenger who noticed a wisp of smoke curling up through the floor of an Indianapolis-bound Greyhound line bus as it climbed a steep hill here.

Calling to Driver Harold Vance, the passenger warned his fellow riders. Vance stopped the machine and helped the passengers out, just before the machine was smothered in fire. A few moments later the gasoline tank exploded, as Vance futilely played a fire extinguisher on the blazing car. No one was hurt but baggage valued at $5,000 was destroyed. The bus loss was estimated at $15,000 by Fire Chief David Hasley. The firemen could do little except hold back traffic that might have been endangered by the fire.

Corruption Within Prohibition Ranks Believed On Wane

Secretary Of Treasury Seymour Lowman Says Corruption Is Decreasing

Recent Weeding Out Of Dry Enforcement Bureau Was Very Beneficial

By ROBERT S. THORNBURG
International News Service Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON, Aug. 8.—Corruption in the prohibition service has been reduced by at least 90 per cent in the last two years, Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Seymour Lowman declared today.

This improvement in conditions he attributed to the placing of dry officials and agents under civil service and the increase in minimum salaries from $1860 to $2300 annually, thus making possible a higher paid personnel.

Soon after taking charge of the prohibition machine August 1, 1927, Lowman issued a sensational statement asserting that the dry forces were honeycombed with corruption and crooks, and that he had launched a drive to weed out the crooked and inefficient agents.

Many Discharged
There was a tremendous turnover in personnel. Many agents were discharged and some of them prosecuted in the federal courts for complicity with bootleggers or other corruption. Most of the dismissals from the service today are for disobedience of orders, inefficiency, failure to produce results and for other minor causes, according to Lowman.

"There are not one-tenth as many dismissals for actual corruption as two years ago," Lowman said. "It was pointed out that because of the great temptation and the large sums offered in bribes by bootleggers, some corruption always will exist in prohibition enforcement, but officials were satisfied that it has been reduced to a minimum and that today a comparatively high state of morale exists in the dry machine."

Lowman pointed out that with the reduction in the personnel turnover it is now possible to develop a staff of well trained administrators, investigators and agents which is producing an efficient enforcement of the law.

Special Committee To Study Prohibition

By GEORGE K. HOLMES,
International News Service Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON, Aug. 8.—Prohibition may be "only one phase" of the national crime situation, as recently stated by President Hoover, but George W. Wickersham, director of the presidential commission on law enforcement, furnished unmistakable evidence today that he considers it a most important phase.

Formation of a special committee within the commission was announced to study prohibition, with Wickersham himself as its head, and including Newton D. Baker, Ada L. Comstock, and Judge Wm. S. Kenyon. Other committees will study subjects closely allied with the prohibition problem such as "the causes of crime," "lawlessness by governmental law enforcing officers," "juvenile delinquency," etc.

May Not Be Popular
The professional prohibitionists and reformers are not expected to take kindly to this development of the law enforcement investigation. They have not yet ceased criticizing chairman Wickersham for his famous letter to the conference of state governors, in which he spoke of modification of the existing dry laws as a step toward better law observance.

Many of the dries, a few openly but more privately, bitterly assailed Wickersham as "a wet" after that letter.

Today they were further disturbed by Wickersham's placing himself at (Continued On Page Two)

Vets Lay Plans For Big Meeting Here In October

Huge Initiation To Which Public Will Be Invited Will Be Staged Here

COMMITTEES NAMED TO ARRANGE EVENT

Preliminary plans were discussed at the meeting of the Harry L. McBride Post, Veterans of Foreign Wars, in the Legion Home Association building last evening, for a huge open meeting and initiation, which will be conducted in the Carnegie auditorium during the early part of October.

Committees were named at the meeting last evening by Commander Orville Potter to arrange for the event and to further the arrangements an intensive membership drive will be staged prior to the meeting. James Bell was named chairman of the membership committee and will start plans at once for the campaign, which is expected to add several hundred members to the post roster.

Already close to a hundred men have signed up to take their initiatory degrees at this time and it is hoped that more than that many more will have been enrolled by the time of the meeting.

State Commander Here
State Commander James A. Van Zandt of Altoona will be one of the principal speakers on the occasion, while other state and national V. F. W. figures will be present.

The initiation work will be in charge of the degree team of the Warren, O. post, which enjoys the reputation of being one of the best in the country. They will probably be accompanied by the Warren Boys band, sponsored by the Warren Post, which has attained national recognition and which occupied a place of honor in the inaugural parade at Washington, D. C., last March.

Announcement of the committees will be made in the near future by Commander Orville Potter.

Plans for a basket picnic at Cascade Park were completed at the meeting last evening. This will be held in place of the regular meeting Wednesday evening, Aug. 21, and the wives of the members will be guests on the occasion.

The post voted that James Bell, delegate to the national convention in St. Paul August 25 to 31, should go unaccompanied.

Officials Still Without Clue In Donohue Killing

Fayette County Officials Are Still Very Much Puzzled By Recent Slaying

KEYNOTE FACTS VERY ELUSIVE

(International News Service)
UNIONTOWN, Pa., Aug. 8.—A "keynote in the arch of facts" is all that is needed to solve the "ride" murder of John Donohue, ex-State trooper and constable, investigating officials said today, a week after the body of Donohue was found in his car on the road near here.

But that "keynote" seemed as difficult to find as the proverbial needle in a haystack. Many facts had been gathered, Fayette county officials said, but they failed to dovetail into a pattern of the crime.

There were pieces of information, here and there, relating to the alleged alliances between officials and a crime syndicate, but there was no direct tieup with the Donohue case, and solution of that case was to be the first step in a "cleanup" campaign.

A. E. Jones, newly appointed special prosecutor or the case, was going over the ground carefully with Major Lynn Adams, commander of State police. But the "keynote" was elusive.

Officials would not reveal what information they are searching for, but the Fayette county authorities continued to cast out hints of impending "breaks" and the State police refused as usual to admit that any apprehensible progress was being made in the case.

Pittsburgh To Attempt Wiping Out Gang Rule

Police Orders Go Out To Rid City Of All Undesired Gangsters

SEEK TO SOLVE LATEST MURDER

With Steve Monastero, Slain, Gangs Are Without Capable Leader Police Believe

(International News Service)
PITTSBURGH, Aug. 8.—With the leader of the Italian underworld of Pittsburgh slain by shotgun slugs, the homicide squad of the city police today began a relentless hunt, not only to find the killers of Steve Monastero, but to wipe the city clean of Mafiaists.

Through the half-world hangers, now disorganized and trembling in fear because of the death of the power who ruled the clashing ambitions and squelched the gangland jealousies, officers of the squad were passing quietly today, under orders from Lieutenant David Corbett to "break up this gang rule, once and for all."

"Put on Spot"
Steve Monastero, who was the power behind operations of giant illicit enterprises that did not balk even at murder, according to police, was "put on the spot" with a thoroughness that may balk finding of his killers, it was admitted today. Like the two score killings that preceded it on the relentless war for supremacy in the underworld here, the Monastero assassination was carried out with great pains, to get him when (Continued On Page Two)

Four Soviet Fliers Hop To Siberia As First Leg Of Trip To American City

(International News Service)
MOSCOW, Aug. 8.—The all-metal Russian monoplane "Land of the Soviets" was speeding eastward toward Omsk, Siberia this afternoon on the first leg of its flight to New York.

Carrying four Soviet fliers, the huge bi-colored craft, hopped off from there at 2:30 o'clock this morning. They expected to reach Omsk, about 1,400 miles away, in fifteen hours.

The flight is being made in easy stages. It will take between 12 and 14 days. After crossing the wastes of Siberia, the fliers will take a route across the Aleutian Islands to Alaska, and thence down the Pacific coast to Seattle and San Francisco. From there they will fly across the continent to New York with a stop at Chicago.

BOSTON, Aug. 8.—Hamming along in the sunlight approximately a thousand feet above the rolling Atlantic at a speed estimated by naval officials at approximately 70 miles an hour, the Graf Zeppelin on the first day of her globe-circling air voyage with 22 passengers and a crew of 41 aboard, today was speeding east from her starting point at Lakehurst, N. J.

From compass bearings taken by the dirigible with naval compass stations along the New England coast, naval officials reckoned that at 9 a. m. (E. D. T.) her position was latitude 41 north longitude 64 west, approximately 480 miles east from Lakehurst.

Woman Accuses Harry Richman Of Beating Her

Husband-To-Be Of Clara Bow's Stands Accused Of Fiendish Attack

MARRIED WOMAN IS INVOLVED

Warren, O., Aug. 8.—The other pretty red haired girl in the life of Harry Richman, comedian, according to her suit, today told of her experience with the fiancé of Clara Bow, when he was in the city.

Ellen Franks, 19, who filed a $250,000 suit against Richman in Pittsburgh courts, alleging assault and battery, was in retreat at Warren, O., from the questioning of the interested public. She was with her husband, Howard Franks, 22, moulder's apprentice and her dancing partner when Mrs. Franks came to public notice in Pittsburgh as a Charleston dancer a few years ago.

The pretty, auburn haired girl was anything but reticent as she described her first meeting with Richman and the events that led up to the alleged beating she received at the hands of the comedian in his private car as he left Pittsburgh for Cleveland. She charges that she received a beating which left her a "nervous wreck."

Richman was playing in Pittsburgh in George White's "Scandals." Mrs. Franks said. A girl friend whom she called "Flo" thought Richman was "awfully cute," and introduced her to the comedian, Mrs. Franks said. In a Pittsburgh cabaret.

"I didn't think he was cute, though, and now I am sure of it," Mrs. Franks hastened to add.

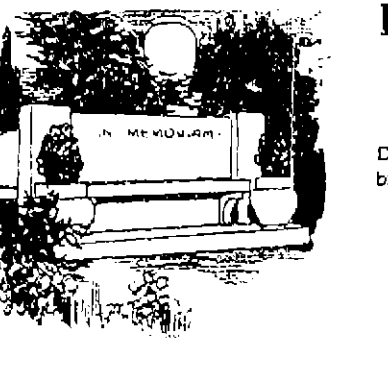

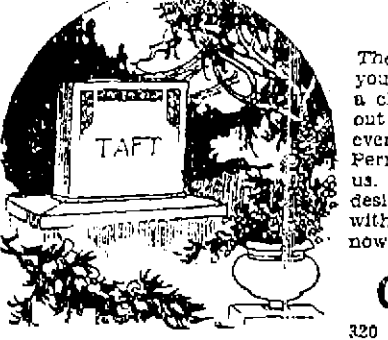

"He put drugs in my glass of ginger ale," Mrs. Franks said, with a trace of a sob in her voice. "He took me onto the train and when I woke up he beat me, oh, terrible!"

She escaped when the train reached Cleveland, and returned home, she said, and she exhibited her finger nails which were bitten off by the way of proving that she now is a "nervous wreck."

Mrs. Franks was Ellen Conley, of the South Side, Pittsburgh, before her marriage.

the head of the special committee on prohibition, and including in its membership Newton D. Baker.

Baker does not believe in "the inherent righteousness" of the Eighteenth amendment. In word and in writing, the war-time secretary of war has characterized its adoption as "a mistake." In the last campaign, he warmly supported Governor Al Smith.

Change Committee Wet

Hence, the drys were saying today that the special committee of four is headed by "two wets." Miss Comstock's attitude toward prohibition has never been made clear. She has not committed herself. Judge Kenyon is a pronounced dry. In the Senate, before his transfer to the federal bench, he frequently collaborated in the writing of prohibitory legislation.

Whatever the ultimate conclusions of the prohibition committee, it is now felt in Washington that an emphasis report will ensue. Wickham and Baker, particularly, are noted for plain speech in matters of public policy.

Eleven Subjects

The two months labor of the Wickham committee have resulted in the reduction of the field of study to eleven specific subjects, as follows:

1. The causes of crime.
2. Statistics of crime and criminal justice.
3. Police.
4. Prosecution.
5. Courts.
6. Penal institutions.
7. Prohibition.
8. Juvenile delinquency.
9. Criminal justice and the foreign born.
10. Lawlessness by governmental law enforcing officers.
11. Cost of crime.

Special reports will be made by the sub-committees to the full commission under each of these headings. The aggregate of these reports will be incorporated into the completed report of the full commission to President Hoover. It should be a veritable library on American lawlessness, and the causes and cures thereof.

he was not under the protecting guns of his henchmen, nor in the armored safety of his specially constructed automobiles. As he and Sam, his brother, stepped from their car to enter the St. John's hospital where a henchman lay recovering from an operation, shotguns from a curtained car finished him.

Hope for Solution

"The boss is gone the way he lived," Lieutenant Corbett said today. "There is now no reason why the Italian colony of Pittsburgh should be in the grip of terrorists and be forced to kick in everything they have to satisfy the demands of murderers."

"We will clean this murder up because it is the one murder solution which hangs the end of these gang killings in Pittsburgh for all time." Blazing guns have disturbed the quiet of "Little Italy" for four years and men have slumped in streets and alleys, filled with lead slugs as the "machine" went about its work of perfecting an organization and eliminating undesired members. Police records show 45 men slain in the city proper during that time and 23 in the boroughs.

Killers Escape

Yet from all the suspects arrested in these cases, nearly all killers escaped punishment, from the law at least.

The organization balked every effort of police to ferret out the murderers.

Now Monastero, suspected by police of having been connected with many of these deaths, is dead. "Big Steve" will no longer exercise the fear-inspired authority of his position as leader of the underworld. And with his passing police expect that the gang may have been broken. Anonymous letters were constantly reaching detective headquarters, attributing to "Big Steve" various crimes. None of them ever was subject to proof, because the writer could not be found. But detectives believed they indicated existence of a group opposed to Monastero's control. And it is to this group that the detectives will appeal in an effort not only to solve Monastero's slaying, but to end gang rule in Pittsburgh.

Suicide Prevented

Sam Monastero, brother of the slain gangland overlord, attempted to end his life by strangling himself in the central station jail today, police said. Acting cell Sergeant James Fay said he found Sam Monastero lying on the floor of his cell, his hands clutched at his throat.

The officers removed that man's necktie and belt and handcuffed him to the bars of his cell. They attributed the suicide attempt to hysteria.

Stenographer Gets Newsy Notes From Communist Meeting

(International News Service)

PITTSBURGH, Aug. 8.—A city stenographer sat in the midst of a young Communist meeting here last night, while police maintained order of the crowd which had gathered, and her pencil flew over the pages of her notebook as she took down every word uttered by the youthful orators.

Today the transcribed speeches were to be submitted to city authorities to take whatever action necessary against the leaders of the unauthorized meeting.

It was a new procedure for police. On International Red Day several meetings were broken up by mounted police and the leaders arrested.

The meeting last night was held in protest against the interference of police with the Red Day meetings.

Palace Of King Quite Different

(International News Service)

LONDON, Aug. 8.—A picture of an old James McDonald of Danville, N.

Y., a member of the delegation that presented a message of greetings from the Boy Scouts to King George, found spoke and span Buckingham Palace far different from the muddy, sticky, tented field at Arrow Park, Burkenhead, where the Boy Scout jamboree is under way.

The king's house is certainly great," young McDonald was quoted by the Daily Mail today as saying. "We had a fine welcome. It was a good thing we cleaned our shoes before we got there. There is lots of deep mud at Arrow Park and if any of it had got upon the fine carpets from our dirty shoes it certainly would have ruined that carpet."

Many of the visiting Boy Scouts are absent from the encampment at Burkenhead upon sight seeing trips.

W. M. Reynolds Makes Announcement For Sheriff Nomination

WILLIAM MCK. REYNOLDS

In a formal statement made today, William McKinley Reynolds, Deputy Sheriff, announces himself as a candidate for the Republican nomination for Sheriff subject to the Republican Primaries, Tuesday, September 17th, 1929. In his statement Mr. Reynolds says:

In announcing myself as a candidate for the Republican Nomination for Sheriff, I do so with more than an ordinary knowledge of the duties of the office and not because I have been chosen by any clique, faction, or backed by any so called Political Organizations.

For the past three years and a half I have been Chief Deputy Sheriff and in that time I have come in intimate contact with every problem of the office. As Chief Deputy Sheriff I have given my best efforts to my work. Should I be fortunate enough to win the Republican Nomination and Election, I can only promise the same attention to detail that I have given in the past three and a half years.

I was born in New Castle on September 23, 1885, and was educated in the Public Schools of this City. I am connected with one of the oldest families in Lawrence County, who founded here in 1805, and New Castle has always been my home. I am married and am the father of two children. I served on the Mexican border in 1916, as a Private in Troop F, 1st Penna. Cavalry, and was an enlisted soldier in the World War. I am a member of the American Legion, Perry S. Gaston Post No. 343, and for many years have been a member of the First Baptist church.

Prior to entering the Sheriff's Office I was employed as a clerk with the firm of Reaie & Matthews, merchants of this city. I also was employed by the Pennsylvania-Ohio Electric Company as an operator on the City and Interurban Lines.

In 1923 the Sheriff's Office was placed on a salary basis, and the fees earned by the office are now turned over to the County Treasurer for the use of the tax payers.

I am the only Chief Deputy Sheriff who has served under the present Sheriff, and my past experience as Chief Deputy Sheriff I believe would prove of value if I were to be elected Sheriff. A vote marked for William McKinley (Bill) Reynolds will be a vote for an experienced man, and a man who was born and raised in Lawrence County.

Today

Wonderful Portland.
22,000,000 H. P.
200,000,000 Acre Feet.
What a Country.

By ARTHUR G. BRISBANE
(Copyright, 1929, King Features
Synd. Inc.)

GERBER, Cal., August 8.—This is written on the "Cascade" fine Southern Pacific train that runs between Seattle and Los Angeles. In the dining car an Easterner absorbs a glass of orange juice, a plateful of fresh ripe figs and a very large piece of pink Devonian melon. Then he begins his breakfast—eggs from Patagonia, bacon from Oklahoma, etc. Paul Shoup, who runs this road, buys Pacific Coast products. The "Cascade" leaves Portland at 10 p. m. You ride through Oregon until 8 in the morning, then all day, half way through California to San Francisco, arriving at 8 p. m. This is a big country.

If you have energy and ambition, bring them here. You need not be young; you will live a whole natural life after you get here, anyhow.

The Columbia River, that runs by Portland, can supply, with its tributaries, 22,000,000 electric horsepower, now practically undeveloped. One-third of the nation's horsepower. The Columbia, with nearly as much water as the Mississippi, floods no land and affords a deep-water harbor more than 100 miles from its mouth.

The Columbia drains only 250,000 square miles, against the Mississippi basin of 1,250,000 square miles. Columbia water, rushing from the Rockies and the ridge of the Cascade, develops the 22,000,000 horsepower that in direct return and industrial production will be worth billions a year to Oregon and Washington.

Until recently, 40,000,000 cords of wood were wasted in this region every year and 40 per cent of lumber passing through the mills was lost. Sawdust alone wasted 15 per cent. Great furnaces were built to burn it. Now wastewood is made into fiber boards used for containers and other purposes.

Power and water, foundation of industry and wealth, are here. The Columbia carries into the ocean 200,000,000 acre feet of water a year—enough to cover 200,000,000 acres one foot deep.

The Willamette brings down from the mountains 30,000,000 more acre feet.

The gigantic Colorado River, destined under President Hoover's management to do so much for states within its reach, flows only 16,000,000 acre feet on the average.

At one place on the Columbia, 2,000,000 horsepower can be developed. At another 1,000,000 horsepower. Some day that power will be harnessed and used to irrigate every foot of land that needs irrigation and supply to industry power and water unlimited. This region could feed, house and employ the nation's 120,000,000 and pay them well.

One great chemical plant at Tacoma, buying power for $21 a year, horsepower, and water for two cents a ton from publicly-owned companies, uses for its product only salt, and power provided by the sun's rays lifting water, will flow down from these mountains forever. When, if ever, natural salt mines are exhausted, there will remain the giant Pacific with a higher percentage of salt than the Atlantic receiving more salt every day from the heavens, that flows down. You have for the life of this planet perpetual motion from the mountains, inexhaustible raw material from the ocean.

Boats go down the Columbia from Portland under government supervision to fish. They use a seine and bring up from 2,000 to 20,000 pounds of salmon and salmon trout at a time.

Farther north, at Victoria, British Columbia, seines haul up from 10 to 40 tons of pike, a fine fish rich in oil. Factories turn the fish into oil for soap and other uses, the residue into fertilizer and feed for cattle. The ground fish is fed to cows grazing far from the ocean. Fish food, rich in iodine, keeps calves from having goiter. That statement may offend your faith-cure friend, but facts are more important than faith cure.

Soon, flying in a few hours will bring from the East capitalists who will change this territory as though by magic. Alfred E. Sloan, Jr., of General Motors; Henry Ford, and especially Mr. Farwell, head of United States Steel, should come here without waiting to fly and put some of this wasted Northwestern power to work.

The development of this country hasn't begun. Its possibilities of wealth and universal prosperity are uncountable. The people some day will regulate their own monopolies, own their own properties, argue their own wages. There will be plenty for all even for the man of exceptional genius. He now demands he right to take more than he needs and give others less than he needs.

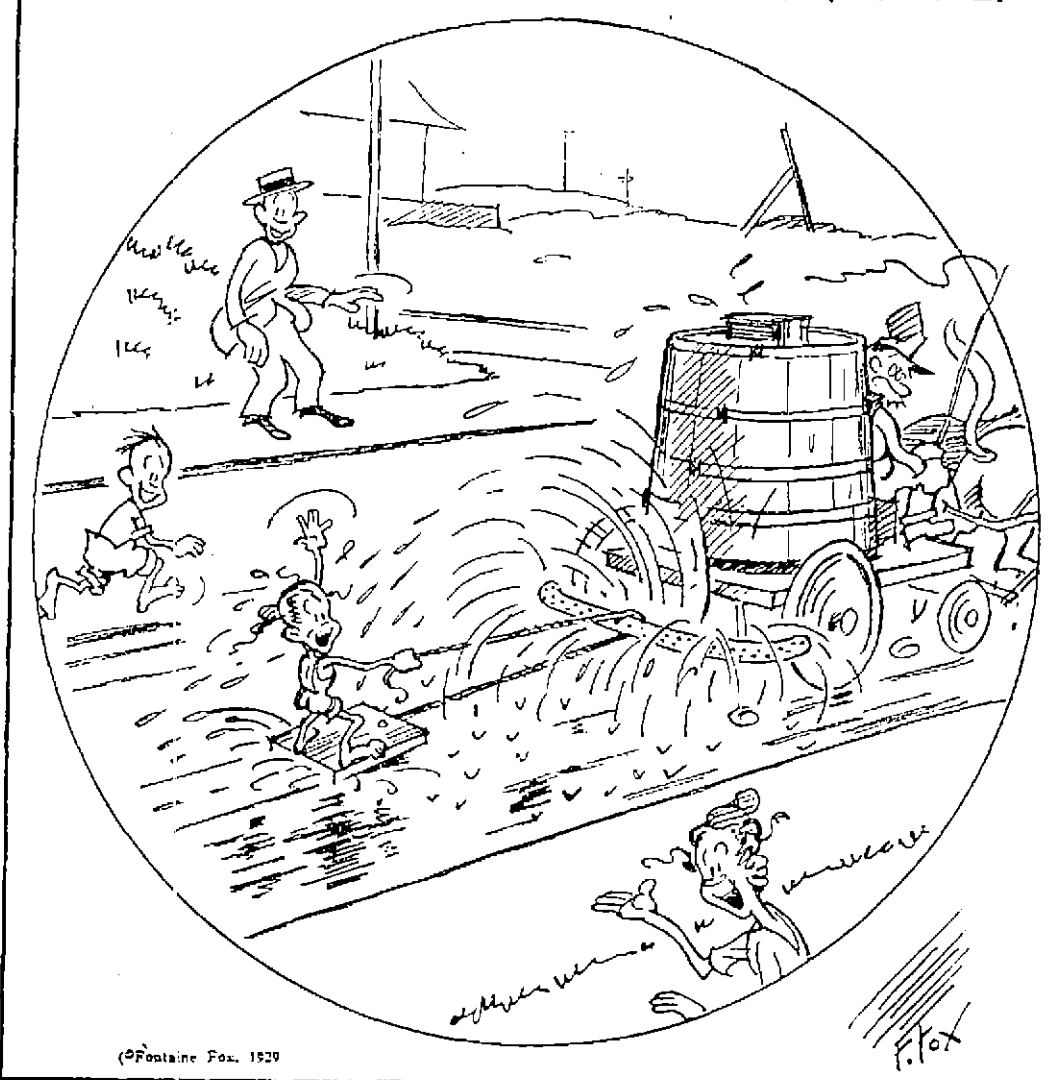

Once the dull minds of kings, bishops and nobles in England demand the right to maintain a fallow and hang miserable creatures, thus providing their own importance. That passion and the desire for useless millions will also pass, and competition will give way to emulation.

Love is a gamester who trusts to his luck; When he wins, he forgets there is when he loses, he turns with a thoroughbred's pluck. Deciding to have a new throw."

A grouch describes a prophet as a guy who tells you what is going to happen but doesn't bet any money on it.

There is not going to be much complaint just as long as the bootleggers and racketeers kill one another off. In most cases it serves them right.

A wife is a person who thinks you might as well fix a few faucets and hinges while you are too sick to work at the office.

Poverty is the one thing that will keep a lot of people out of trouble. A flyer was blown to pieces while 4,000 feet in the air in California when his gasoline tank exploded. A flyer isn't safe in the air even.

While I was waiting for the neighbor folk, I went down through the orchard, where in rows There stood the last few dying apple trees. The Willow-Twigs, the Wealthys and the Snobs. And I remembered how he used to say, When first he spaded up the hill-side lawn: "This land is rough and just a trifle thin. But with some maple it will look like home."

I saw his woodpile and his chopping block. He always split his stovewood straight and neat. I walked back where his blue grass pasture spread And stopped to see his field of winter wheat.

His barn was empty; they had turned his team Out in the cornstalks, and the harrow Right there upon the pegs, and near the shed There lay a neckyoke by his wagon tongue.

I went inside the house—the preacher talked; He did his best, but these young chaps don't know Just what to say about a man who came To plant the groves and fruit trees years ago.

The greater the civic activities the better and bigger communities are built up. Taking care of and boosting the enterprises and activities of a community attracts industries and population. A county fair is a great civic asset. City folks are expected to at least attend the county fair and mingle with their friends in the country. The Lawrence county fair will be held the last of this month. Make your plans to attend it as many days as possible and you will have helped a lot. We owe the farmers a lot and at least enough to go and see what they produce.

Dear Sir: Of all man's worst traits, envy is up near the top of the list. Terrible thing, envy. It will magnify the dyspeptic neighbor's crust of bread into a gilded banquet.

Out in Kansas a young bride left her home to visit her mother. Before she left her husband gave her some candy to eat on the way and told her to think of him while she ate it. He had filled it with poison and she gave it to some of her nieces and they died. He has confessed to the crime. He gave no reason for wanting to kill his wife. There is a mighty good reason or two for killing that bozo.

PHIL OSSIFER.

THE LAW NEEDS NO WHIP IF IT REFLECTS MAN'S INBORN SENSE OF RIGHT

A great many people think virtue a commodity in trade. They practice virtue as a physician practices medicine—that is, they surrender their liberty of action and do certain disagreeable duties in expectation of a reward.

The fault is not in themselves but in their training. As children they were bribed to good. They were taught to expect a reward for virtue here and hereafter, and taught to expect punishment here and hereafter if they were bad. Inevitably they learned to regard virtue as a somewhat disagreeable means of winning a prize, and wickedness as an enjoyable business that everybody would delight in if it could be practiced without fear of the law.

People of this type frequently say, "If I thought there was no hereafter, I wouldn't try to be good. I would turn loose and enjoy myself." They mean, of course, that they would enjoy doing the immoral things they now are afraid to do.

The morality is not a means of winning awards. It is an exercise of common sense, and all moral laws were produced of common sense. The first unit of government was the family, and the family head was the first law maker. He saw that certain practices, such as theft, lying, promiscuous mating and disobedience to authority resulted in confusion, quarrels and suffering. He prohibited them because their results were unprofitable. Children were taught rules of conduct designed to keep them out of trouble.

These rules, inspired by good sense and expediency, were sanctified by custom and in time became a code of morals—a definition of virtue—but their purposes and effect was and is to avoid the penalty of folly. Immorality is to be avoided, as a child avoids playing with fire, because the results are painful.

So much for the rules man has made to save his skin. The rules change as customs change, and the morality of one land is immoral in another.

But the virtue a decent man practices for its own sake is born in him. He is born with a love for equality, for justice and for freedom. Without teaching and without hope of reward or fear of punishment—as naturally as the duck takes to water and the cat stalks its prey—he hates the tyrant, abominates that which is unfair and jealously guards his liberty.

The whole of honor is in equity and fairness, and decent men practice honor for its own sake and scorn dishonor.

Laws made to uphold honor never are despised for they reflect man's nature. He would obey them if they were unwritten. Laws that invite controversy and tempt men to disobedience are mere definitions of morality, temporary opinion or local prejudice, unsupported by the universal conscience.

How's your racoon coat standing the heat?

DON'T WANT TO SHOCK HIM

He was a real estate man who had been run over by a fast moving motor car. His accident made an instant operation imperative, and on coming out of the other the patient noticed that although it was still daylight as the blinds were drawn.

He called the nurse and asked the reason.

The nurse studied him in silence for a moment.

"Right as rain," she asked.

"But why are the blinds drawn?" "Well," said the nurse, "there's been a big fire across the road and we thought that if you arose too soon you might think the operation had been unsuccessful."

They kill the elephant to get the ivory and let baseball umpires and other ivory heads live.

We often wonder how the wives of some birds we know get along with them. They must be mighty fine and tolerant wives or they just have come to the place where they don't care.

"Come on up to dinner with me to-night," has made more than one married man unpopular with his wife. This does not mean as we would take half a dozen up and there would not only be smiles but plenty to eat.

Some people seem perfectly satisfied when they have some public office and a salary with it of course.

"Women have proved themselves equal to men." Yes, indeed. In pioneer days only the men were proud of their backbones.

Most any woman will agree that if her husband is caught with an affinity that both he and the affinity are insane.

There's really no use telling a man not to let grass grow under his feet because it wouldn't anyway.

Steamer R. E. Lee Holds Place Despite New Speed Boat Records

Admirers Of Palatial Champion Of Mississippi River Craft Hold That New Record By Different Type Is Tribute To Old Side-Wheeler

Should a race by a speed boat to around excellence of design and construction the record of the old Mississippi steamer?

River monarch, the Robert E. Lee, built in 1870, since that memorable race, says the cycle's challenge to a race horse. "The Lee, if docked at New Orleans, would be looked upon much as would an ox cart. But it was the fastest boat of its time, faster in its day than anything afloat today—when the comparison is fair. Therefore, if these sportsmen want to win real fame, let them build another Robert E. Lee as nearly as is possible, and then set out to lower that mark. They will win real glory if they set a new mark."

A record obviously cannot be allowed, asserts the NEW ORLEANS TIMES-PICAYUNE, "very more than could a motorcycle go out upon a race track and, having surpassed the horse speed for any distance, lay claim to the horse record. The Robert E. Lee's feat was the greatest made by a wheeled steamboat, and as such must stand until surpassed by another wheeled steamboat. The SPRINGFIELD, ILLINOIS STATE REGISTER comments: "Other motor boats are bound to go after that record in dead earnest. But there will never be the same element of dramatic interest and intensity, quite that surrounded the Robert E. Lee-Natchez race, as the stately boats swept up the river at the crack of the pistol."

"It would be as sensible to pit an airplane against a battleship in a race along the Atlantic," contends the RICHMOND, TIMES-DISPATCH, while the LYNCHBURG NEWS-RECORD, "this day of amazing speed," declares the MEMPHIS COMMERCIAL APPEAL, "the breaking of a Mississippi River record made 60 years ago cannot be hailed as any glorious mechanical victory. Nor will the time consumed be written down as a marvel of speed in a day when speedboats can negotiate 50 miles or more in an hour. But what will be written indelibly in the history and traditions of the romantic stream is the story of the courage, the vitality, the hardihood and the noble determination of the two men who overcame many obstacles and dangers in establishing complete mastery over a treacherous and powerful stream. The intrepid sportsmen have added to the romance of a glamorous stream, even if they have contributed no material of swiftness in a day of amazing speed."

"Difficulties were overcome and the nerve and endurance of the three men in the boat proved beyond question," according to the PITTSBURGH POST-GAZETTE. "While the small motor boats will remain pleasure craft and the large packets continue to carry the freight, the exploit of the Bogie does prove that the power boat is adapted to long-distance river work and may lead others to resort to the rivers for recreation." The ROCKFORD STAR remarks: "No record but that made by the Lee has been immune to breakage during the last decade, when nearly every mark has been taken out for an ailing and nearly trimmed. We can't help but sigh a little that perhaps the last old mark has been shattered. While the mark of the Robert E. Lee stood, there was one last bulwark against this feverish record-breaking—now that has been swept away."

"Old river pilots will agree," maintains the KANSAS CITY JOURNAL-POST, "that it was no easy thing to clip three hours off the old record. But the new mark will not stand long unbroken. This is the day of speed on the land, through the air, in the water. With the constant improvement of the big rivers, the growing commercial water traffic and the development of the country adjacent to our water courses, faster boats will be the order and each year may be expected to mark a new river record."

THE DAVENPORT DEMOCRAT, however, lauding the chief figures in "the historic race of the Robert E. Lee and the Natchez, started June 30, 1870," concludes: "The ship of the steamboat men that early day may feel proud that it took nearly 60 years to mark a new record, but that could have been produced a bare three hours from that mark."

"Maybe the Arkansas Belle, the Silver Cloud, the Will S. Hays, the Mary Houston, the Granite State, the Howland, the Cons Mober and a score of others whose names still thrill older river men, like bars of well-remembered heroic memory, were not quite as slow by comparison with modern craft, on long voyages, as some of the youngsters have believed them to be," suggests the LOUISVILLE TIMES, and the PATTERSON PRESS-GUARDIAN argues that "this breaking of the record is really another testimonial to the speed of the famous old packet streamer."

"The Bogie could take only three hours off the mark. Their fact speaks volumes for the Lee's old."

A UNIVERSAL BELIEF

DICKENS has often been severely taken to task because, in "A Tale of Two Cities," he has made such free use of the facial resemblance between Charles Darnay and Sydney Carton in working out the plot to the unforeseen conclusion.

In the beginning of the story he saves Darnay from probable execution by the expedient of making his identification by the hostile witnesses doubtful. Their doubt he makes very real by causing Carton to stand beside Darnay in the dock, so that all present, including the jury, could see for themselves the extraordinary likeness between the two young men and the consequent probability that a mistake had been made.

He uses the same resemblance in the end to allow Carton to take Darnay's place in the Parisian prison, and to save the life of the former by taking his place at the foot of the guillotine, and suffering the death penalty himself instead of the man who had succeeded in winning the heart and hand of Lucy Manette.

There are, indeed, certain difficulties to giving one's complete adhesion to the likelihood of so heroic an act of self-sacrifice, as well as to the means adopted to bring it about; but so fully do people believe in the possibility of mistaken identity that without positive identification by more than one person it is next to impossible to obtain convictions in criminal cases. This policy of juries probably frees the guilty in many instances, but public opinion excuses that by citing cases where it has spared the innocent.

TWILIGHT OF THE BULL

TIME was, in the merry beyday of Spain, when the bull stood for heroism and martyrdom. Great throngs gathered at festive arenas to see matadors, pleaders and toreadors, goad noble bulls into frenzy, then kill them. It was a great sport. The throngs laughed and waved mantillas and other Spanish objects d'art. When the bull fell, part of the thrill to the crowd, no doubt, came in a feeling of feverish pity and sympathy for the dumb animal.

But now Spain is becoming civilized and has taken up soccer football as a halfway station to the more humane sports. One ponders a bit on the dumb animals who must compose the soccer teams of old Madrid and Seville. In fact, one comes to the conclusion that it would be pleasanter to be a jay-walking pedestrian than a Spanish soccer player. If the former, one could at least die quietly. It is possible that the players long wistfully for the good old days when the crowds indulged their bloodthirstiness on a bull which did not quite know what it was all about.

There is this to be said for Spanish soccer: It is difficult to believe that it will ever inspire an opera about an infuriated cigarette girl, her toreador boy friend and a suicidal climax. In the modern sporting history of Spain there can be no such word as suicide, for none of the soccer players, it is believed, will live that long.

It is hoped that the bulls, with a heritage of generations of romantic deeds, will be retired to green pastures and the sunlit uplands of Granada and the Basque country, to make-up in quiet contentment what has been denied a long line of their ancestors.

MASCULINITY TURNS

HEMMED in on all sides by their women folk, men are making a last desperate effort to preserve their rights. In the midst of the skirted hordes a little masculine flurry is observable centering around a barber pole. It marks the final stand of beleaguered males at a modern Thermopylae. These men will return victorious or be borne on their shields.

He who runs may read the signs and portents. Here and there barbers, heading the protests of their masculine patrons against usurpation of chairs by women, are hanging out signs reading "For Men Only." Barbers explain that feminine customers bother the men who come often and spend more.

Women have invaded men's clubs. They have made their way into business, public office and politics. At the entrance of the last sanctuary, the barber shop, men have taken a final stand, shouting their battle cry: "They shall not pass!"

We guess will power is where you resist the impulse to take a course in developing will power.

Since retiring, Mr. Coolidge is said to have changed over from smoking cigars to cigarettes, but still does not chew.

The turn-over value isn't much if there is a ditch there.

A GOLFER'S VERSION

(With apologies to the late Joyce Kilmer)

I think that I shall never see
A tougher hazard than a tree.

A tree o'er which my ball must fly
If on the green it is to lie.

A tree which stands that green to guard
And makes the shot extremely hard.

A tree whose leafy arms extend
To kill the mashie shot I send.

A tree that stands in silence there
While angry golfers rave and swear.

Nibbles are made for fools like me
Who cannot even miss a tree.

THE TRUE SATISFACTION

In life is never measured by position or price.

In love is in what we are able to give, not what we get.

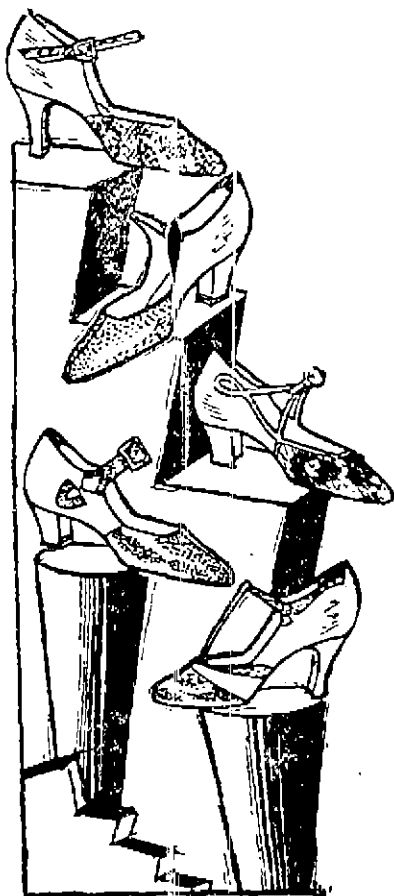

In religion is not in the hereafter, but in the here and now.

Neiman's

New Location—Formerly The Lillian Shoppe

Bo Broadway

by JOSEPH VAN RAALTE

(By Central Press)

NEW YORK, Aug. 8.—A million dollars a day is bet with the handbooks in New York and vicinity. If you are known and want to place money on the see-gam, the process is simple. Drop a nickel into a telephone coin box and send in all you want. Ninety per cent of the money sent to New York finds its way to Street City poolrooms, headquarters and clearing house for the book-makers.

ANTIQUITY ALLEY

The mile on Madison avenue between 50th and 51st streets is known as "Antiquity Alley." Nearly every shop in the stretch has not on a la carte restaurant is devoted to the sale of treasured furniture and bibulous ornaments. Here all America dumps the stuff that got so badly Grandma stored it in the attic. Here you can find anything from Early Wop to Late Oscar Wilde and the Renaissance Come-On period.

Don't invade that territory. Brothers and Sisters, with the idea of investing in antiques until a Pop struck down on the extreme right side of the present Bull Market. It appears getting the fingers tangled in the Big Notes.

Stroll along Antiquity Alley and you wonder how the Bazarhouse Bazaars manage to pay rent. They range row upon row of musty and melancholy grain—with never a customer in sight. But once get behind the scenes and the plot is unfolded.

Most of them are backed by interior decorators or have interior decorators for their paravels. The new-rich, of post-war times, with no discrimination of their own, engage the decorators to embellish new homes and purchase whatever they suggest. Each decorator touts a particular an-type dealer—and nine out of ten it's the beginning of a Beautiful Friend-ship.

A BOOTLEGGED BOOK

All the Old-Ladies-in-Search-of-a-Thrill are reading D. H. Lawrence's new book, "Lady Chatterley's Lover," privately printed in Europe and for sale to subscribers at ten bucks a copy. The New York book sharks pirated the volume, largely by the photographic process, and copies of one such edition have been fetching as high as $50.

When Lawrence found what the New Yorkers were doing he got as sore as a bilged landlady, but he had no more redress than a bilged bootlegger. He retaliated by preparing for the European market a cheap edition of the story. With a kick in Paris, and every smirking and sophisticated tourist smuggling back a copy into the United States, the pirates are left holding the bag, as Emerson would say.

I read the book and it reminded me of the washroom wall in the tough public school I used to attend. Lawrence's excuse for his truck-driver frankness is that frequent encounters with soiled syllables will enable us to get a new cover for the garbage can.

Sometimes I think the Dutchess has no soul.

THE SEASON BEGINS

Old Dave Belasco, dean of the theater and Big Boss Endorser of Cheap Cigarettes, has opened the new theatrical season on Broadway with an indelicate and hilarious comedy called "It's a Wise Child." It doesn't require much imagination to realize that the piece deals with what Broadway calls the inevitable "non-uniform baby."

If the nature of the play is an indication, we're probably in for another 10 months of theatrical bawdiness.

Last year 17 Broadway offerings hinged on "Little Wonderfals" whose Paws and Maws had produced without a license.

The crop of modern young Play-wrights who write this sort of stuff are a hardy crowd. It may be that their endurance in producing such mad showings will not wilt and wobble. But here's hoping it does.

NATURE NOTE

The prettiest girl at the Paramount Long Island movie studio is the catty cashier who dispenses checks in the cafeteria.

Headlamps Should Be Used Only When Actually Needed

HARRISBURG, Aug. 8.—"An annoying practice to which comparatively few veteran automobile drivers are addicted," is Motor Vehicle Commissioner Benjamin G. Eymon's criticism of the turning on of bright headlamps before there is need for them.

"I do not refer to long-distance travelers who turn their lights because of a desire to save their batteries," said Mr. Eymon. "I mean the operators who a few minutes after sundown, and long before it is dark, turn on the brightest filaments in their lamps and blaze quite an unnecessary trail. The bright lights are never more annoying than during the last hour of daylight. The law requires that an hour after sunset and until one hour before sunrise cars shall display lighted lamps. 'Sunset' is the hour fixed officially, not the hour at which the sun disappears behind some high hill or mountain. The only other requirement as to time is that lights be turned on when any person on the highway 200 feet ahead is not clearly discernible. Therefore no reason exists for blazing headlamps when 'sunset' is a long way off and the roadway ahead is not obscured.

"The chief offenders in this particular are very new drivers, not the old-timers."

Piles Go Quick

Without Salves Or Cutting

Thousands who have piles have not known that quick and permanent relief can only be accomplished with internal medicine. Neither cutting nor any amount of treatment with ointments and suppositories will remove the cause.

Bad circulation causes piles. There is a complete stagnation of blood in the lower bowel and a weakening of the parts. Dr. J. S. Leonard found the remedy and cured his presiding High-Roid. He tried it in 1000 cases with the marvelous record of success in 95 per cent, and then decided it should be sold by druggists everywhere under a rigid money-back guarantee.

Don't waste any more time with outside applications. Get a package of HEM-ROID from McKee's Kidney-Sore, Remedy of New Castle, Inc. today. It has given safe and lasting relief to thousands and will do the same for you, or costs you nothing.

PETER'S ADVENTURES

ANIMAL LAND

WHIZ BOSS PETER

It was impossible for Dawdler to keep still for very long at a time. Now, all danger past, he bustled about among the wounded bees, giving them first aid with his tiny splints and bandages. The poor bees were so grateful that they caressed his coat with their long tongues as he bent over them.

Whiz wanted to help the workers carry away the bodies of the bees who had lost their lives defending the hive, but Peter wouldn't let him. "See here, old fellow," said the boy, "let me take your place. You have a broken wing and there isn't a thing the matter with me. You stay right here and tell me what to do."

So Whiz took his advice and crawled up on the top of the entombed snail, where he would be out of the way of the workers. From his perch he buzzed orders to Peter, who did his level best to carry them out. Several times the boy bumped into a bee, and once he stepped upon a worker's foot, but the bee didn't act a bit cross about it, and only said, "Why, certainly, sir," when Peter politely begged his pardon.

So quickly did everybody work that in no time at all the hall was cleared. The bees flew busily in and out of the door, each on his own task bent, and just as if a few minutes before they had not taken part in a terrible fight.

Peter noticed several of those who had flown away so sadly to die with the Queen coming back. They recognized him, too, and calling him "dear brother" they passed by!

The boy was wondering whether he would slip and fall on the wax if he tried to climb up beside Whiz when Dawdler tapped him lightly on the back with his cane.

"Well done, old sport," buzzed the merry-headed dove. "I think you have earned a good square meal! I am sure I have, and I am ready for it, too. I can tell you. How do you feel about it?"

"To tell the truth," said Peter, "I am nearly starved. I really don't believe that I have ever been so hungry before in all my life. I haven't had a thing to eat since morning, and it must be late in the day now. I wish that I had finished my breakfast," and he sighed regretfully as he though of the fine egg he had left untouched upon his plate.

Was it growing dimmer inside the hive? Peter looked about him. "What time is it?" demanded the boy, suddenly turning to Dawdler.

Next: "Telling Time in Beesville."

Scout Recovers Body Of Woman

The details have just been disclosed of a marvelous feat of a New Castle boy, several days ago recovered the body of Mrs. Arlene Hamilton of Black Ash, Pa., who drowned in Sugar Lake.

The youth is James Snyder, fourteen year old son of W. M. Snyder of Garfield avenue.

Mrs. Hamilton and another woman were boating on Sugar Lake, when the three year old son of Mrs. Hamilton fell from the boat, into the water. Mrs. Hamilton jumped in after the boy and, after coming up once, she disappeared. The child was pulled into the boat by the other woman.

When James Snyder heard of the drowning, he immediately obtained a boat and with the aid of Mr. Hippel of Black Ash, succeeded in recovering the body from the water, at a depth of twelve feet. Young Snyder's efforts at resuscitation proved futile.

James Snyder is a student at Benjamin Franklin Junior High School, where he has passed the junior life saver tests. He is a member of the First Christian Boy Scout troop.

Gives Warning On Vacation Typhoid

HARRISBURG, August 8.—A noticeable increase in the so-called vacation typhoid has been reported by Dr. J. Moore Campbell, chief of the Bureau of Communicable Diseases.

Commenting on this report, Dr. J. Edgar McGraw, Deputy Secretary of Health said: "It appears that a number of Pennsylvania vacationists being accustomed to pure water and milk supplies at home conclude that the same conditions exist in remote spots of this and other states. While everything is done to protect the automobilist and sojourner the fact remains that when one invades sections of the main and secondary traveled highways and other jurisdictions sometimes lacking intensive supervision, water and milk supplies will not be thoroughly protected. Result, frequently vacation typhoid. In view of the fact that perhaps more than one-half of Pennsylvania's people yet are to take their vacations a warning on this subject at this time is logical."

Reverberations Of Mergers Are Already Felt In Politics

(This is the fourth and last of a series of articles on the present situation and trend in the public utilities field.)

By HOWARD P. JONES

Central Press Staff Writer

NEW YORK, August 7.—Picture a man seated at a desk, able to control at a nod the economic fate of millions—nay, of all America!

This is perhaps what Governor Roosevelt had in mind when he talked of economic feudalism.

To some degree we have it already. But the snowball of centralization, rolling down the financial hill and getting bigger with every turn, may bring us within a few years to a state of central control undreamed of a generation ago.

What will this mean to you and me?

More prosperity?

Without doubt.

More freedom?

That depends, both upon what you mean by "freedom" and upon the way things work out. It depends upon what type of man sits behind that desk and whether he thinks in big, unselfish terms or in big, selfish terms.

It depends, finally, upon you and me. How far are we willing to let this man go in taking the reins of financial control? How far are we willing to let him go in taking the reins of political control? How big can we afford to let him get?

In the last analysis, he is a public servant, just as much as if you and I had gone to the polls to elect him. For he retains his power through our acquiescence.

Economic issues have always been the most fundamental political issues. When you talk taxes, you talk politics. When you talk tariff, you talk politics. When you talk prices and wages, you talk politics.

The issues which brought about the American revolution were economic issues. The same is true of the French revolution. The same is true of the uprising of the British people which forced King John to sign the Magna Carta in 1215.

The political hour upon which Theodore Roosevelt rode to the White House were almost entirely of an economic nature. He cleaned up the New York slums. He fought the monopolies and the corruption in politics brought about by lobbyists for special interests.

Bryan, the Economist

Even William Jennings Bryan, whose later days were spent in an effort to disprove that men and monkeys had a common ancestry, will have written the word "economics" next his name in the book of politics. For his famous "Cross of Gold" speech, winning him the nomination for the presidency, was of the financial order. He was of the fight over the currency.

This vast movement of mergers about which we've been talking has a heavy tread. Its reverberations already are being felt in politics. Not a capital of any state, not a municipality in the country, above all, not the capital of the United States, will fail to listen closely within the next few years.

The fight may be a bitter one; on the other hand, with prosperous times, the decision may go nearly by default. But, whatever happens, it is going to be worth watching.

Compromise On Navy Program Is Followed By Complications

By CHARLES P. STEWART
Central Press Staff Writer
WASHINGTON, Aug. 8.—President Hoover's compromise on the navy program has brought on complications.

The choice recently was put up to the president of going ahead with the construction of five new cruisers which congress had provided for, or holding up the program while he discussed naval limitation—or reduction—with Premier Ramsay MacDonald, of England.

He compromised.

He held up three of the cruisers; ordered a start on the other two.

He doubtless foresaw that the big navy folk would howl.

They did, and will howl still worse when congress meets, and they can do so to better effect. It will be about as loud a howl for three cruisers as would have been possible if work on the whole five had been delayed.

However, Mr. Hoover assuredly also counted on a determined defense of his policy, by the naval reduction element.

He would have had it, too, to the last ditch—if he had held up the full five cruisers. Instead of merely three.

Of the original five cruisers, congress intended three to be built in the government's own navy yards, and only two of them in private yards—the Bethlehem Ship Corporation's and the New York Shipbuilding company's—both described by the railroad brotherhoods' official organ, "Labor," as "bitterly non-union."

Mr. Hoover made the mistake—if mistake it was—of holding up the first three of these vessels, while directing the non-union private yards to go ahead.

Considering that trades unionists are the staunchest body of naval reductionists in the country, organized labor's reaction may be judged.

The militant publication, "Labor," already has fired its first gun in the campaign.

"Under any fair construction of the law," it declares, "the president should either have suspended construction of all the cruisers, or if he desired to go on with two of the boats, should have ordered that at least one be built in a navy yard."

Mr. Hoover's motive was not economy, either, "Labor" adds, as "the cost of construction in the government yards is decidedly lower, due in large part to the loyalty and efficiency of the union employees."

The big navy-ites will base their attack on President Hoover's course on this grounds:

"Congress did, indeed, authorize modification of the cruiser-building program in the event of an actual agreement on international disarmament, but it authorized no such thing on the strength of a tentative conversation, which is as far as the talk between President Hoover and Premier MacDonald has progressed."

In the circumstances union labor is unlikely to admit that this covers the present situation—and politicians of the reductionist school certainly will hesitate to argue that it does, with unionists practically unanimously insisting the contrary.

Maybe the president will change his order as the outcry swells, which it is sure to do.

Then, however, there will be trouble with the private yards' friends. Organized labor probably will not be fully placated by an afterthought, either.

It simply is another compromise gone wrong.

Employment In Various Sections Of State Is Good

Big Demand Voiced For Unskilled Labor—No Slump In Metal Industry

HARRISBURG, August 8.—Widely varying employment conditions in various sections of the state are indicated in the monthly report of all employment offices made public today by the Department of Labor and Industry.

With but few exceptions and those not in the cities dependent primarily on metal and metal products, plant conditions in those steel plants has not developed and many of the larger plants have standing orders for skilled workmen.

The demand for common labor—considered the backbone of the consuming and buying market—varied in all sections of the State. In most cases, a good demand for unskilled workers was reported.

The Pittsburgh district reported the best demand for common labor that has existed for some time while in small cities, such as Lancaster, conditions were reported as the worst in the history of the bureau.

All of the employment offices depend on road and public construction work to absorb the supply of common laborers during the summer season. In sections where few such projects are under way the offices find difficulty in making placements.

The silk and textile industries were reported as unusually active, especially in eastern Pennsylvania where each year additional plants are being located. In some sections of the anthracite field the silk and textile payrolls big fair to overtop those at the mines.

The Scranton office reported an optimistic outlook for the coming months when the peak demand for anthracite is reached.

In the bituminous field little change was reported, with production continuing to exceed demand.

NEAR COLLAPSE AS HE UNFOLDS STORY OF CRIME

purse in which she sometimes carried a pistol. We struggled and I hit her again.

"She slid out of the car. I followed her out and as she came toward me I hit her again.

"She fell, her head striking the running board. She did not rise.
"I was crying and in great pain when I first struck her. I cannot remember hitting her more than four blows."

The witness paused. He seemed to be struggling to pull himself together.

COURTROOM, COLUMBUS, O.,
Aug. 8.—"The night of the crime," when he killed Theora Hix, co-ed beauty, was graphically described from the witness stand today by Dr.
James H. Snook, former college professor on trial for her murder.

The jurors leaned forward in their chairs and the huge throng of spectators held their breath as the defendant, cool as ice, told his story.
Step by step, Snook led up to the description of the crime. On the fatal night of June 13, last, he met Miss Hix at about 7 p. m. She had telephoned him about 4:30 p. m., making the appointment.

Went Riding
She asked him if he wanted to go to their "love nest" and he replied he was not particularly desirous of doing so. So she said "let's go for a drive." They did, motoring out to the outskirts of the city. He did the driving.

Enroute she handed him a sandwich, saying she thought he would enjoy it as he must be hungry. She told him she had eaten.

"I ate the sandwich," Snook testified, "but I didn't like the crust and told her so."

(The defense contends the sandwich was drugged with a sex-exciting concoction.)

Miss Hix had taken her purse along, Snook said in answer to a question. They drove over various roads.

Wanted to Scream
"Take me some place where I can scream," Snook said Theora told him.
(Previously, Snook had testified
Miss Hix had been nervous and irritable for weeks.)

They stopped at one place on the road. She seemed different. She put her arms around him and said: "Are you feeling better?" She put her arm around his shoulder, he said. But she didn't like the place so asked him to drive somewhere else. He drove her to the lonely, tree range, outside the city, arriving there "about ten minutes after nine." He parked the car about thirty yards from the road
when he drove in.

He turned off the lights of the machine. They sat there for a while.
And then they quarreled.

COURTROOM, COLUMBUS, Ohio,
Aug. 8.—Theora Hix, slain campus beauty, became transformed into a "Tiger Woman" in her attitude toward him in the weeks immediately preceding her tragic death, according to Dr. James Howard Snook, former Ohio State University professor, who today resumed the witness stand to disclose details of the "last quarrel" that provoked him into killing her with hammer and knife on a lonely rifle range on the night of June 13.

Threatens Him.
Calmly, and without the slightest trace of emotion in his voice, the tall, bald-headed, scholarly looking defendant, told the jury Miss Hix nag-ged him, slapped him, cursed him, threatened to tell his wife of their clandestine love affair and even declared she would shoot him. He was as self-contained on the stand, as he sat there with legs crossed and apparently relaxed, as if he were pro-pounding a theory to a classroom of students.

"Nothing I did suited her toward the end," he exclaimed, almost petulantly. "She thought I wasn't making enough of a fuss over her."

Snook portrayed the quiet, retiring co-ed as a "two-man woman." He related in detail and with shocking intimacy her secret love affair not only with himself but with Marion T. Meyers, another former Ohio State University professor. He branded Theora as an "experimenter with drugs," not only on herself but on him. He spared the dead girl's character not a whit in his remarkable recital to the jury in the presence of a thronged courtroom of spectators.

This morning, when Snook resumed
the stand in his battle to save himself from the electric chair, his direct testimony was nearing its climax. He had reached the point in his astounding narrative where he was leading up to the events immediately preceding the murder. Later, he was to be subjected to rigorous cross examination.

Hard To Handle.
Miss Hix, once so sweet and trusting, became mighty hard to handle after their "affair" had run a course of three years, Snook revealed. She wasn't the same girl he had set up in a "love nest" when they were madly infatuated with each other. Frequently, they had quarrels in the "nest" and while they were out motoring. Several times she refused to get out of his car when he was about to start on a trip alone and "dared" him to throw her out.

She had got to the stage where she was taking drugs of an aphrodisiac nature and she was administering them to him, he related. He said she carried a little bottle containing tablets in her purse. On two occasions he had observed her taking cocaine, once by injection.

The co-ed became cross and irritable for some unexplained reason and developed a desire to hurt him and to scratch him. Often in their "love nest" she assaulted him. Later she would deny she had done this. Finally, he used to jot down in a notebook
these occurrences and when she returned to a normal frame of mind he would tell her about the "altercations" and just how she had mistreated him.

Snook Refreshed.
Snook seemed refreshed as he ascended to the witness chair this morning. He was questioned by Defense Attorney Max C. Seyfert. He told of loaning Miss Hix $1,000 which she later paid back at six percent interest.

Testimony reverted to the "love nest." Snook said they both had a key to the "nest."

The testimony became unprintable at this juncture as Snook went into detail.

SEVENTH WARD NEWS

Old Mahoningtown School Pupils Have Reunion Wednesday

About Seventy Attend; Other News Notes Of Seventh Ward

Mahoning school was the scene of the reunion Wednesday afternoon. This reunion was the gathering of pupils of the old brick Mahoningtown school from about the year 1900 until about 1908. With six or seven classes represented. About fifty were present at the meeting in the afternoon. It was a great occasion as they were several who had not been present at any of the previous three reunions held. Old school friends were greeted, some of them having to introduce themselves, and old times were recalled when they were pupils together in the old brick Mahoningtown school.

Only one of the old teachers was present for the occasion this was Mrs. W. C. Mechen, of this city. In addition to renewing old acquaintances a business meeting was conducted. J. H. Gwin, president of the organization presided. During the business meeting it was discussed as to who was eligible to attend the Mahoningtown school reunion. It was unanimously decided that all persons that attended the old brick Mahoningtown school up to and including the year 1914 are eligible to attend the reunion and agreed to plan to attend the next one.

The present officers of the organization were re-elected. These are: President, J. H. Gwin; vice-president, J. L. Thoman; secretary, W. W. McGaughey; treasurer, R. V. Wetlich. During the meeting a number of the persons attending the reunion were called upon by the president for short talks.

At the conclusion of the reunion at Mahoning school it was continued again at Cascade Park where a picnic dinner was had in the grove at 6 o'clock. At the dinner at the park nearly seventy were present. Included the old school pupils and families. The reunion was a most enjoyable occasion for all present.

Victor L. Berger, Noted Socialist Dies Of Injuries

Recent Injuries Suffered By Former Wisconsin Congressman, Prove Fatal

(International News Service)
MILWAUKEE, Aug. 8.—Victor L. Berger, nationally prominent Socialist leader and publisher of the Milwaukee Leader, died here Wednesday from the effects of a basal skull fracture, sustained July 16, when he was struck by a surface car.

The former Socialist Congressman became unconscious early in the day and physicians feared that the relapse might be fatal. Prior to Wednesday he was considered to be recovering.

Berger was born February 28, 1860 at Neider Rebbuch, Austria-Hungary. He was educated in the Universities of Budapest and Vienna. He never completed his studies there, coming to the United States in 1879.

The former congressman soon became interested in Socialism and after coming to Milwaukee organized a group of Socialists. In 1896 he went to St. Louis to a Socialist convention, then called the Peoples' Party, as a delegate.

Running as alderman-at-large, Berger was elected in 1910 and a year later was elected congressman. He was re-elected in 1915 and at a special session in 1919 was again elected.

In 1917 he was refused a passport to the International Peace Conference at Stockholm, Sweden by the then Secretary of State Robert M. Lansing.

The Way OF THE World

AGE LIMITS

A practical psychologist, given to investigations and statistics, gives the deadline age beyond which white collar workers are likely to have trouble getting better jobs. They may even have trouble holding the jobs they have. It is sadly true that at some point along the line of his working years a man begins to have a poorer and poorer chance of finding a better place in life. This psychologist puts the age for bookkeepers and cashiers at 45; general salesmen from 35 to 41; clerks in retail stores at 33 and stenographers at 28. Executives in the $10,000 class should be well placed by the time they are 47. These are interesting and significant figures. At whatever age, we should look about, take stock of ourselves and decide to do something about it. Especially is it important for young people to do this. A man should establish his earning capacity as early as he can and make it as high as he can. If he hasn't succeeded in reaching a high mark at 45 he may yet reach a great future but his chances are not so good.

DIET AND WEIGHT

There are few things more carefully read in a newspaper than articles on diet and weight. Almost everybody you know wants to be thinner or fatter. But, especially those who want to be thinner, are willing to subscribe to any theory, but they are not ready to eat less or take specific exercise. They want to eat their cake and have their slenderness.

There is a great deal of "bunk" about dieting. A wise man once said: "If there is one thing I like above another, it is food." He was what ever he chose but he was right. The important thing is not so much what you eat as how much. In brief, to be thin you must have will power, not a particular diet. Most of us, in the amount of food we consume are governed by our taste, not by the needs of the body.

THINKING UNHEALTHY

In that gripping book by the German soldier, "All Quiet on the Western Front," the writer says soldiers who kept busy dodging shells and doing the best they could as fast as they could, could stand the awful terror of war. Those who stopped to think much about it were overcome by it.

We don't have to go to war to practice that rule of life. Many would be happier if they kept busy doing what there is to do and didn't give so much speculation to what they are going to do next or where they will look for another job when they get fired from this one.

U. S. Tariff Wall

Brings Reprisals

(International News Service)
LONDON, Aug. 8.—The efforts of American protectionists to establish what is regarded over here as a virtually impenetrable tariff wall around the United States have caused the greatest economic scare known in Europe since the World War.

While France urges the countries of the old world to unite by forming a "United States of Europe," England or a section of it, has started an "Imperial Crusade" for the creation of a Customs Union throughout the British Empire.

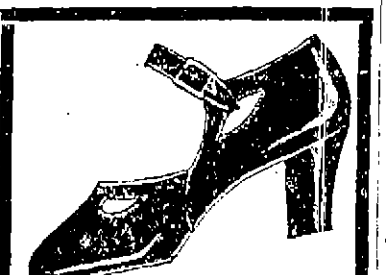

This proposed Union provides for Free Trade within the Empire. Under it the tariff barriers between Britain and the Dominions would be knocked down, while the barriers against the rest of the world would be raised.

It involves a tax on all foreign wheat and meat, with free entry for British wheat and meat at all ports in the Empire. The British manufacturer will also get the right of entering the Dominions, the British Colonies and protectorates free from Customs tax, while the foreigner will pay for the privilege.

The "Crusade" is being sponsored by Lord Beaverbrook, the head of one of the most influential newspaper groups in England, and as backed by many of the country's leading industrialists.

Delegates Named To Prison Meeting

(International News Service)
HARRISBURG, Aug. 8.—Governor John S. Fisher has named six delegates to represent Pennsylvania at the annual congress of the American Prison Association to be held in Toronto, Canada, September 20 to 25. Those named were Mrs. E. S. H. McCauley, secretary of welfare; Dr. E. L. Scott, director of the bureau of restoration in that department; James W. Herron and John D. Morris, both officials at the Pennsylvania industrial reformatory, Huntingdon; Stanley P. Ashe, warden of Western penitentiary, and William F. Penn, superintendent, Pennsylvania training school, Morgantown.

Exhibit Will Be Shown At Fairs

Educational Exhibit Of Insects
To Be Shown By State
Department

HARRISBURG, Aug. 8.—The exhibit arranged by the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture will be shown at no less than five county fairs during August and September, according to R. G. Bressler, Deputy Secretary of Agriculture. The schedule from August 20 to September 21 includes the following fairs: Mifflin County Fair, Lewisburg, August 20-24; Centre County Pomona Grange Encampment, Centre Hall, August 24-30; Montgomery County Fair, Hatfield, September 2-7; Clearfield Fair, September 10-14; Mifflin Township Fair, Newville, September 18-20.

The exhibit was shown for the first time this year at the Cambria County Industrial Exposition at Ebensburg in July. Almost 300 square feet of space was covered by the display.

The exhibit is considered the most attractive that ever has been arranged by the Department. It shows in a comprehensive way many of the important lines of work conducted by the Commonwealth in the interest of the farmer.

The Japanese beetle and the European corn borer, two of the most destructive insect pests that have even been introduced into the Commonwealth, are shown along with samples of the damage they do. An enlarged colored drawing of an adult Japanese beetle along with charts on life history and mounts of actual specimens are presented.

Youthful Drivers Must Show Cards

State Patrolmen Will Make Careful Check On Youthful Drivers For Cards

HARRISBURG, Aug. 8.—Very youthful drivers of motor cars in Pennsylvania, hereafter will be required to produce operators' licenses, when encountered by members of the state highway patrol, Commissioner Benjamin G. Eynon of the motor vehicles bureau today announced. Eynon has turned over to Superintendent Wilson C. Price of the patrol a letter from Dr. G. M. Willey, field psychiatrist of the welfare department's bureau of mental health, in which Dr. Willey refers to unlicensed drivers of extreme youth.

has examined have driven motor cars for a long time, but without ever having been licensed.

It occurs to me—as it has undoubtedly occurred to you, that one of the effective means of dealing with automobile larceny is to check up the young drivers frequently for licenses. Another approach to this matter would be to insist that a parked car must be locked in some manner, since these boys tell me, almost without exception, that they have never attempted to appropriate a machine which was adequately secured, except in the course of breaking and entering a garage where unlocked cars were kept.

Of 69 inmates in the institution examined the last few days in July a total of 49 declared that they drive motor cars and truck, but do not hold drivers' cards. Of the 69 only 19 possess average intelligence, and six of the 19 are dull.

29 LOSE LICENSES
HARRISBURG, Aug. 8.—The bureau of motor vehicles during the past week revoked the cards of 29 drivers, suspended those of 47 and restored the driving privilege to 38.

State Legion Convention To Be Huge Event

Musical Organizations To Add Flavor To Coming
Sessions In Scranton

GOVERNMENT BAND
LEADERS TO JUDGE

SCRANTON, August 8.—Reservations for the American Legion state department convention which is to be held here the last three days of August are continuing to arrive in large numbers and a bigger attendance than at first anticipated is expected by the Executive committee.

In addition to the big delegations from the larger cities of the state, many small towns are sending in groups of fifty and more and most of the delegations will be accompanied by bands. The committee announced that at least a hundred musical organizations will be here for the contests and parade to be held on the closing day of the annual gathering.

Unlike other state conventions of the legion, the local committee has decided to have musical events judged by army, navy and marine corps band leaders. This is to prevent any favoritism being shown. The detail will come here from Washington, D. C.

Valuable prizes are to be awarded and there will be contests for all of the organizations. Many points of the State have sent in inquiries about the competitions and especially asked about the judging of the events.

PLANE FACTORY WILL
DOUBLE ITS OUTPUT

(International News Service)
LOWELL, Mass., August 8.—As a result of an order for 50 planes, believed to be the largest single order for airplanes ever placed in this country, the Moth Aircraft Corporation, only airplane factory in New England, will double its weekly output. At present the plant has a capacity of from four to five planes weekly, but officials of the concern stated that the process will be speeded up to turn out nine planes weekly. It was said that the order for the planes was secured in New York.

Prince George Is Suffering With Stomach Trouble

(International News Service)
LONDON, Aug. 8.—The condition of Prince George, youngest living son of King George and Queen Mary, who is suffering from stomach trouble, was reported as unchanged Wednesday. He is on a strict diet and has been ordered to the country to rest.

A London cablegram to International News Service several weeks ago said that Prince George had been compelled to relinquish his foreign office duties because of the condition of his health.

Thoroughbred Cattle Staging Long Hike

(International News Service)
WARREN, Pa., Aug. 8.—"Self-respecting" bovines belong in a nice, cool pasture, not hiking along the hot pavements in this kind of weather, gumbled Alice and Tomboy in cow language as they passed through Warren, en route by hoof to St. Louis, Mo.

The weather wasn't the least of the troubles of Alice and Tomboy—who, it is known, are thoroughbred cattle—nor was it the heat. They were forced to submit to petting and affectionate gurgling from thousands of amused persons who saw them on their 1,200-mile jaunt from their home town in Vermont to the national dairy show in the Missouri city.

And that, averred the cows, is very degrading for a self-respecting pair of champion animals of the National Ayrshire Breeders Association.

Alice and Tomboy were making about 16 miles a day in their walk from Brandon, Vt., men in charge of the advance car said.

Miss Franks also charged that before she entered the car she had been drugged by drinking "some beverage" given her by Richman. She says in the statement that she was rendered helpless and while in that condition Richman "wilfully and maliciously struck and beat her on and about the body, head, legs and arms, and otherwise mistreated her, causing severe and painful injuries."

The statement further claims that she has never recovered from the injuries received and that her nervous system has been permanently impaired. She asks $250,000 from the actor.

Miss Franks was not in the city when the suit was filed and Richman was believed to be in Hollywood.

The average hourly wage of the woolen and worsted goods workers in the nine states included in the survey amounted to 51.4 cents as against the Pennsylvania hourly wage of 46.9 cents, and the average full-time weekly earnings for the workers as a whole in the nine states totaled $25.34, as compared with the weekly earnings of $24.58 paid to the Pennsylvania workers.

Among the many cases cited in the bureau's statement is this one:

"Amputation of left arm above the elbow interrupted the employment in a bituminous mine of a young man, 21 years of age. The bureau of rehabilitation trained him in a commercial school as a bookkeeper. The bureau has received a letter from his present employer which contains the following paragraph: 'After being in the employ of our company about eight months he has been promoted to assistant credit manager with full charge of retail credit. He has proven himself a very exceptional young man and I believe great credit is due the bureau.'"

The bureau of rehabilitation operates as a branch of the Department of Labor and Industry and its work in training matters is under supervision and control of the State Board of Education. Disabled persons are offered rehabilitation service by mail from the central office in Harrisburg and are requested to return registration questionnaire. A registration form received by mail is referred to the branch office in the district in which such person is located. Branch offices are located in Philadelphia, DuBois, Wilkes-Barre, Pittsburgh, Pottsville and Altoona.

Show Boat Revives River Melodrama

HANK SIMMONS

Editor's Note: This is another of a series of sketches of the most prominent radio artists of the day. Others follow.

By ALMA SIOUX SCARBERRY
Central Press Staff Writer
NEW YORK, August 8.—"Ey what right have you to tell me I can't take this gal to Noo Yawk with me?" (Hisses and boos.)

"By the God-given right that she has promised to be MY WIFE."
(Hurray! Atta boy!)

And, thusly, with the coming of Hank Simmons' Show Boat to the air a year ago, the real old-time river melodrama—priceless thing of laughter and tears—is with us again. One of the first childhood memories of this writer is of the enchanting "toot-tooten" toot-tooten of the steam calliope, announcing the show boat's spring arrival at a little southern Ohio river town—Sciotoville. And of a kind old lady who smiled a toothless smile and said: "Run, get me a loaf of bread, little gal, and I'll give ye a nicker fer to go set on the merry-go-round." Then of sneaking down to the river, deliciously thrilled and scared because papa was a parson and had taught us to believe all things theatrical were of a very horny old satan with long forks and plenty of stove wood in his back yard. Hank Simmons—G. Underhill Macy in real life—has given the old river show boat owner an uncannily natural river twang. Harry C. Browne, brother of Brad Browne of the "Kit Wits," is that big, strong man from the wide open spaces who always saves poor, harassed little Maybelle in the nick of time. He writes the material, too.

Real Acting
Believe it or not, we saw in the front of the "Mike" while "Maybelle"—Elsie May Gordon—did her meller-drama a few nights ago in "Clouds and Sunshine," and she really truly cried. It was at that heart-throbbing spot where her crook husband, whom she believed dead, came back and threatened to tear her from her lovely peasant fiancé. Tears—real and salty, Maybelle completely forgot herself.

The setting of the show boat in the studio is no doubt one of the most interesting to be found. It is one of the few where visitors are welcomed and urged to come again. The young men and boys are placed on a platform and told they are the rosy peanut gallery, and that they must stomp and roar with abandon. Below are the ladies and older men and a few children. Harry Browne, a few minutes before the "curtain," gives a short rehearsal for the benefit of those who are newcomers.

On placards are written "Hiss and boo," "Laughter," "Hearty Laughter," "Cheer and hand clapping." Thus the crowd is informed when to hiss the villain and glad-hand the hero and heroine. Often there are nearly a hundred people to lend that natural crowd atmosphere you hear when you tune in on Hank and his river family.

Records Generally Used
Phonograph records are used by the studios now for the crowd-gone-wild atmosphere. They are specially constructed records, sounding as though they might have been made at the world series or a prize fight. Don't you folks who tune in on Hank's show boat miss the calliope? That is all it needs to make it perfect. A rickety old calliope playing: "Wait till the sun shines Nellie And the clouds go drifting by."

Among those who enjoy your vacation are those who have left behind to worry along without you for two or three weeks.—The Danbury Evening News.

Recovers Watch Through News Ad

Mrs. Frank Phillips of Mahoningtown R. F. D. No. 8 is another Lawrence county resident who has demonstrated the efficiency of News want ads.

Last Saturday, Mrs. Phillips lost a valuable wrist watch in the Penn. theater. She advertised her loss in the columns of The News, and today the watch is in her possession. It was found by Mrs. Charles Harris of 1707 Highland avenue, who noticed the ad and returned the valuable trinket to its owner.

McKay Boosted For
U. S. Attorney Post
SEARON, Pa., Aug. 8.—With the possibility that a "dark horse" will be named United States attorney at Pittsburgh to succeed John D. Meyer, friends of District Attorney Leo H. McKay of Mercer county are hopeful that he will be selected for the position. The Mercer county prosecutor, immediately following Meyer's resignation, was an active candidate for the appointment, but withdrew when he learned that his old friend, Attorney Lewis E. Graham of Beaver, was an aspirant.

V. F. W. To Bring Back
War Dead In Russia
MOSCOW, Aug. 8.—Michigan members of the American Veterans of For-

Bedridden Six Months
I Am Now Doing My Own
Housework.
I was all run down with nervous prostration and palpitation of the heart (often getting black in the face and thought to be dying), and for six months I was confined to my bed. A relative of mine who had been troubled with female weakness and nervous prostration and had been cured by Thompson's Barosma, recommended it to me. I began to take the Barosma at once and was not only cured of nervous prostration and palpitation of the heart, but began to gain back my flesh, and from that time on until now have been perfectly well, doing my own housework.—Mrs. Ely M. Marsh, Titusville, Pa.
When constipation is present Golden Lax Tablets (25 and 50 cents) should always be taken. Thompson's Barosma $1.00 for sale at all drug stores.

sign Wars forming a special mission have arrived in Moscow, planning to recover the bodies of American soldiers of the Polar Bear division along the Archangel front.
Foreign office authorities received members of the mission and promised full cooperation.
The Americans will start for Archangel on August 9 and will set to work immediately to recover the 128 American bodies buried in the cemetery there and other points in north Russia.

Falls 227 Feet To Death In Mine Shaft
WASHINGTON, Aug. 8.—A drop down a 227-foot shaft of the Montour No. 10 mine of the Pittsburgh Coal company at Library, resulted fatally for Nick Vontempoe, 12, of Library. Details of the accident are meager, but it is known that the boy and some youthful companions were playing near the mouth of the shaft which is new and not yet used by the company. Suddenly his companions noticed the absence of their playmate.

The boy's body, terribly mangled and crushed almost beyond recognition, was found at the foot of the shaft. His parents are Mr. and Mrs. John Vontempoe of Library, near Finneyville.

Luxury to Find No Lap In John Coolidge's Home

Florence Trumbull to Start as Modestly as Her Mother Did

WHEN John Coolidge, son of the former President of the United States, and Florence Trumbull, daughter of the governor of Connecticut, are married, probably this Fall, they will begin housekeeping on an income just about equal to that with which the parents of the bride began a little more than twenty-five years ago. And they'll start right in "doing without" things, too.

The bridegroom-to-be called the White House home for years. The bride-to-be has grown up surrounded by every luxury. But they'll establish a home in New Haven just as modest as that which Mr. and Mrs. John Trumbull established in Plainville a quarter century back, long before they had any inkling of the honor and wealth ahead.

Mrs. Trumbull hints that the wedding will take place in the Autumn, and they will live on the salary of a clerk of the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad. Mrs. Trumbull continued:

"Of course they will have to begin housekeeping in a very modest way. But that's all the more fun, we think. The time to begin doing without things is when you are young and as I look back on the years when I was first married I realize that the Governor and I really enjoyed trying to get along on what we had."

"We were talking it over just the other night and remarking that John and Florence will have a little more to start with than the Governor and I had when we set up housekeeping. Only, of course, money went further in those days than it does now. And people didn't want so much—there wasn't so much to want."

It is a fact the palatial home of

FLORENCE TRUMBULL

Governor and Mrs. Trumbull at Plainville, with its gardens and garages, close to the big factory of the Trumbull Electric Company and the Governor's own private flying field, is the result of hard-earned prosperity following years of discouragement and failure. He is quick to attribute much of his success to the encouragement of his wife.

While Florence Trumbull is dividing her time between summer sports and the hemming of dish-towels and table linens, John Coolidge will be busy at his desk. They will be married without ostentation in the Plainville church the Trumbulls attend of the executive mansion.

Thus probably before Thanksgiving these members of two of America's most prominent families will be Mr. and Mrs. John Coolidge—just a young couple trying to get along.

Most Plant Pests Are Imports From Foreign Countries

Invasion Of Insect Enemies Cause Many Quarantine Rulings

HARRISBURG, Aug. 8.—A very large percentage of our important plant pests could be traced as immigrants from foreign countries, R. H. Bell, director, bureau of plant industry, Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture, today asserted in discussing the reasons for present rigid state and federal quarantine regulations governing the transportation of certain products.

"Even more significant is the fact that in many instances the introduction of these pests has been accidental or brought about by some more or less unimportant or unnecessary importation," Bell added. "The San Jose scale, for example, came in on a small shipment of flowering peach sent by a missionary in China to a friend in San Jose, California, about 1870. The losses caused by this insect to the fruit growing industry during the past fifty years can scarcely be estimated."

"The chestnut blight which has made a thorough job of the native chestnut in the eastern states, found its way here on Japanese chestnuts imported simply to complete a collection of all chestnuts."

Came With Hessians
"The Hessian fly, a serious wheat pest, is believed to have come to this country in straw imported by Hessian troops during the Revolutionary War."

"The Oriental fruit moth which has proven one of the worst pests with which our peach growers have to contend came to this country in shipments of Japanese cherry for ornamental use."

"The European corn borer, which is threatening the corn crop in sections where control measures are not followed carefully, found its way to America in importations of broom corn from Europe."

"The Japanese beetle, first found in New Jersey in 1916, undoubtedly entered the country from Japan in shipments of either bulbs or ornamental plants."

"The Federal and State quarantine policy and practice do not aim to absolutely exclude valuable plants and plant products from other countries," Bell explained, "but rather to adequately safeguard such importations so that the introduction of injurious pests may be reduced to a minimum."

Van Duzer, assistant chief engineer, said today. The Department of Highways, under the law, prescribes regulations governing the erection of mail boxes, milk stands, etc., within the right-of-way limits of State highways and, as a matter of safety, has established such regulations.

Explaining the department's regulations, Mr. Van Duzer said: "A survey of our State highway shows that sufficient regard is not shown for the regulations governing the erection and maintenance of mail boxes and milk stands within the right-of-way limits."

"The Department of Highways has a regulation that no mail box shall be within four feet of the improved road. For safety's sake, it would be better to have this six feet. The post should be firmly imbedded in the earth, and it would add considerably to its appearance if it were painted white."

"The milk stands are another eyesore along the highways as the majority of them are not plumb, and very few, if any, painted. It is suggested that the farmers could add materially to their property and to the road in general if they would erect milk stands about six feet square on posts placed plumb in the ground, and paint the structure white. These stands should not be closer than six feet from the edge of the improved road."

"From a strictly practical standpoint these posts and milk loading platforms present serious accident hazards to night drivers unless they are painted white. Many are covered by snow in winter and not only hamper snow removal but actually endanger the crews driving snow plows."

Harlansburg To Open New School

Expect Part Of New Structure To Be Ready For Occupancy At Start Of Term

With work being rushed forward at a rapid pace on the new eight-room consolidated school building being erected by the Scott township school board in Harlansburg, indications point to the building being ready for occupancy by the time the fall term starts.

The structure has been under roof for several weeks, and the plastering has been done on a portion of the building. Workmen are now busy laying the floors.

While the entire structure will not be ready for use by the first of September, it is expected that four rooms will be available for school purposes, which will be all that will be needed for the time being.

Good progress is also being made on the addition to the basement building, and a portion of it is also expected to be ready for the opening of the term this fall.

Big Ulcer All Healed

"Now I Can Walk" Says Mrs. Southcott

"There is another letter that makes me proud," says Peterson. "One that I would rather have than a thousand dollars."

"It seems like a miracle, but it's true, every word of it."

"I know it because I get similar letters almost every day from people who have used Peterson's ointment for old sores, eczema and piles."

"Is it any wonder I am proud?"

Dear Sirs:

"I was an untold sufferer from an old running sore on my leg. I had tried most everything without any relief from pain. A friend told me of your wonderful ointment and the first box took away the pain that had not left me before in years, and after using just nine dollars' worth of the ointment I am cured. The ulcer was 9 inches by 5 1/2 inches. It all healed and I can walk. Never, never will I be without Peterson's again."

You may use this to recommend your ointment if you wish. I cannot say enough to praise it. Yours truly, Mrs. Albert S. Southcott, Lyndonville, N. Y. Generous box 25 cents.

GETS UNDER WAY AT MIDNIGHT ON TOUR OF WORLD

Verne, the man-made piece of silver, clean and durable, they call a dirigible was well away on its flight around the world.

Its motor sang Auf Wiedersehn at 12:40 a. m. (eastern daylight time) today.

Pretty Take Off.

A shadowy silver bar gemmed with cabin lights, its take-off was a thing of beauty. The historic episode was also studied with a flavor of international camaraderie. A smooth-clicking team of American gobs and marines sent the German dirigible on its way while a military band played the 22 passengers aboard into the horizon with "It's a Long, Long Trail Awaiting."

Before heading toward Friedrichshafen, its first stop, the Graf Zeppelin arched proudly over the city of skyscrapers, out-electrifying Times Square, flirting with the Woolworth tower and setting the official time of the world circuit at 15 minutes before 2 o'clock (eastern daylight time) as it passed over the Statue of Liberty.

And in a gesture, as it struck out for the grandest adventure since man learned to use his wings, the Zep sent a radio message of appreciation to the American people and the American navy for their hospitality and aid. The first radio message to be sent by the round-the-world dirigible was addressed to Secretary of the Navy Charles Francis Adams and read: "Leaving the shores of your wonderful country, desire most urgently to express to you our admiration and sincere thanks for splendid hospitality which we have been privileged to enjoy at your naval air station at Lakehurst and for all your goodly support which made possible our pleasantly started flight around the world."

Message to Airport.

The second message from Dr. Eckener, the bearded skipper of the airship, was addressed to Lieut. Commander M. R. Pierce, in charge of the airport here.

"On leaving your hospitable grounds I wish to thank again yourself, officers and men of your station for the most excellent assistance and cooperation which we have had the pleasure to enjoy. Auf Wiedersehn."

A dirigible hazard seemingly more dangerous than facing the elements appears to be stowaways. On the westward trip of the Graf they discovered a German lad after the Graf had taken off. Last night they found Morris Roth, 18, of Trenton, N. J., nestling on the catwalk of the dirigible, another hopeful airship hobo. Morris wore a bright red sweater for the ocean trip and carried a rope with which he planned to lower himself after the Graf. Under way, Roth was found by the stowaway searching squad and thrown into the airport brig.

A Second Stowaway?

The youngster said he wanted to go over to Germany to see relatives. He had no money but took matters as a joke. There was a report that another boy had been seen inside the Zep, but when the ship upweighed there was no sign of him.

At the last moment there were three added passengers. They were Joachim Rickard of Boston, Lieut. Col. Nelson Morris of Chicago and H. A. Godfrey of Brooklyn. Rickard's place was originally gained but finally room was found for him. Colonel Morris, nephew of Ira Nelson Morris, former American ambassador to Sweden, came over in the Graf on its trip from Germany last week. Morris, a colonel in the Illinois National Guard, is shooting for a record of ten days from Germany to Chicago and back. Young William B. Leeds, millionaire son of the late tin plate king, is the wealthiest passenger aboard and his name was officially withheld until the last day.

"All aboard" that call so well known to land lubber travel, was sounded at midnight. The passengers, including Lady Drummond Hay, the only woman aboard, climbed into the big bag at the mystic hour of midnight, but one missing—William Leeds. They found him holding hands romantically with his wife, Princess Xenia of Russia. He kissed her a hasty farewell and ran for the gondola.

Big Ground Crew.

With the baggage stowed and the ship trimmed, the expert ground crew composed of 412 American gobs and marines began scientifically juggling the airship.

Throughout the darkness of the hangar, herds of silhouettes moved hither and thither. Gobs clung like leeches to the control car. A sand bag was added here and another there.

Lieut. Scott Peck, U. S. N., directing the delicate performance of getting the Zep into the sties, stood in the center of the naval barn and gave his orders through a megaphone. Before rolling the hydrogen-buoyant dirigible out into the field, its equilibrium must be established. They call it weighing ship in lighter than air company.

"Hands on," ordered Peck. Almost a thousand hands grasped various spider ropes dropped from the ship.

"Hands off," ordered Peck. They took ballast off here and put ballast on there. Flashlights streamed ribbons of gold on the pearl-gray overcoat of the Zep.

"Weigh ship," ordered Peck. Moves Out.

Then, with the gondolas on wheeled "dollies", the Zep began moving astern foremost out of the hangar. As the mid-section passed through the giant doors, there was a scraping sound which must have sandpapered the very heart of Commander Eckener, watching the operation like a fond parent his child. But it was only a portion of one of the railroad trucks under the airship which had brushed against the hangar.

Out under the stars, the Zeppelin was again balanced. Then it moved twice its length toward the center of the field.

Under a naval floodlight as big as a barrel hoop, final delicate adjustments were made. The floodlight at one point went out. But it went on again a minute later.

Then Skipper Eckener took a last smell of the weather like the old sailor he is and sprang for the gondola as the ship aimed for the skies and Friedrichshafen, Tokyo, Los Angeles and Lakehurst again and glory. But it was all on the menu for 15-year-old Ernst Fishbaugh, pantry boy and youngest member of the Graf Zeppelin crew. Through the lighted windows of the gondola housing the ship's galley, Ernst could be seen opening cans and apparently wondering when they would get him a new can opener.

Hoover Congratulates.

Before departure, President Hoover sent a message of bon voyage to Dr. Eckener which read:

"I wish you a successful voyage. The Graf Zeppelin is making a constant contribution to the development of the art of transportation.

(Signed) "Yours faithfully,

"HERBERT HOOVER."

Dr. Eckener replied as follows: "Deeply appreciate your kind wishes. May I through you express profound thanks for the welcome we have received from the American people and the splendid cooperation we have had from the navy department which has made these trips possible.

(Signed) "Sincerely,

"HUGO ECKENER."

The distinguished guests who waved goodbye and good luck to the round-the-world Zeppelin included Mrs. William Randolph Hearst, wife of the publisher, who is backing the flight; U. S. Attorney Charles H. Tuttle of New York, Congressman Christopher D. Sullivan and Congressman Sirovich of New York, Japanese Consul General Koshiki and representatives of the army, navy, state and city authorities.

The Zeppelin carried a ton of mail, 500 pounds in cargo and "Happy", a Boston terrier and an anonymous alligator until one of the crew named him "Zep".

Using New Compass.

The Zeppelin is using an earth inductive compass for the first time. This American instrument has been in use on the naval dirigible Los Angeles for some time.

The epic of the Graf Zeppelin was begun with fair weather ahead for the first lap of the voyage which carries him over the northern great circle route taken by trans-Atlantic liners. Eckener expects to strike the coast of Ireland or England in from 45 to 50 hours after leaving the American shore line.

The stars shone in the heavens when the Graf Zeppelin soared away on its curve of the earth. If you believe in the stars, that may mean something. And when the Graf Zeppelin comes home to port on September 3rd or 4th as promised by its pilot, there will be a new star to believe in.

ON THE MORNING OF MAY 30, 1916, THE BRITISH ADMIRALTY LEARNED FROM INTERCEPTED WIRELESS SIGNALS THAT THERE WAS UNUSUAL ACTIVITY AT WILHELMSHAVEN, WHERE THE GERMAN HIGH SEA FLEET LAY. SURMISING THIS MEANT THAT THE GERMAN FLEET WAS COMING OUT, THE ADMIRALTY ORDERED THE BRITISH GRAND FLEET TO CONCENTRATE IN THE NORTH SEA AT ONCE.

Loughran-Sharkey Matched For Title Battle

Heavies Will Go Into Ring September 26

Yankee Stadium Will Be Scene of Big Heavy-weight Tilt

MAX SCHMELING IS GIVEN GO BY

By DAVID J. WALSH
Sports Editor, International News Service
NEW YORK, Aug. 8.—Tommy Loughran, the light-heavyweight champion, and Max Schmeling, the controversial champion, will meet Jack Sharkey for the Muldoon-Turner belt of the heavy-weight title on September 26, and the meeting will take place at the Yankee stadium, New York, not at Navin field, Detroit.

This today seems to be the purpose of a statement issued last night by the National Sports Garden Corporation, outlining its latest policy on the heavy-weight situation. It means that the Garden's war with the New York boxing commission is ended in what "Mysterious Billy" Carey, the veteran promoter, probably would call a compromise. The boxing commission held that it could not put on a Sharkey-Schmeling fight in spite of his announcement that he would not fight either here or in Detroit. It finally was settled by mutual consent; that is, the boxing commission said there would be no Sharkey-Schmeling fight and Carey consented.

Loughran Signs
He closed with Loughran early last night, probably for a straight percentage of the receipts, after coming to a belated realization of the fact that Schmeling was due to get him nothing but a large order of bi-carbonate of soda for his aching head. Sharkey already is under contract for a guarantee of $100,000. A tenth of which already is in hand, meaning Sharkey's. The noble tar also has a 25 per cent privilege, which probably is the figure that squelched Loughran with the Garden crowd. This is a matter of fact, probably would have signed for 25 cents and the right to be good to his mother. He figures that the heavy-weight championship is already his.

Whether the commission will recognize the new arrangement as a championship is not definitely known, but it probably will be feeling rather bugged on the issue of its victory over the Garden crowd. Besides, it is difficult to see how the substitution of Loughran can affect the status of the title shot, except possibly for the better. He, of course, must go through with his announced intention to abandon the light-heavy-weight championship and this may be done at the commission, either tomorrow or next Tuesday. It virtually is ordained that the Garden's benediction on the Loughran-Sharkey fight will follow. It will be scheduled for 15 rounds, and anybody who can't afford to pay $20 for a ringside seat will be welcome—in Central Park.

Bankers Top News

It was only a practice game, and the boys sure needed it. Last night at Colonial Field, the Bankers took the New Castle News team for a ride on the merry-go-round. The score was 24 to 15.

Chris Clarke in left-field for the Bankers was just about the whole works, nabbing innumerable flies, and again rivaling Babe Ruth with the lusty willow. Al Owens was also in a hitting mood last evening, and patted out several nice bingles. Manager Laurel is fast gathering a winning ball club and with more experience the Bankers are going to give all of the teams a hard chase for the pennant.

Behind The Sport Scenes

Back to things military and you know that a training army requires a first-class training cadre to drill recruits and replace casualties. Wars waged between men in ropes also require training staffs which are as little in the public eye as those which function "when the guns begin to shoot." Yet the boys in back of a boxer—his manager, trainer and seconds—operate as a general staff, service of supply, and ambulance corps combined when the gloves begin to fly.

The trainer's principal job is to bring his boxer to the ring in top fighting form—not weakened from over-training or lazy from too little. The average manager, of course, directs like a general the battle of strategy of his moral ticket, with the chief of staff acting somewhat like an army's chief of staff. They watch for weaknesses in the ring tactics of the other brawler and their own as well, pouring their directions into their man's ears between rounds and frequently signaling him when in action. Expert advisers know just what, and how much, to tell their man; the dubs in that line (and they are legion) simply confuse their scrapper with chattering jumbles of bad advice.

Crack corner men must be "first graphic consideration later on.

Lehigh Defeats Tim Mill Team

Rich On Mound For Lehigh
Mushball Team Pitches Six-Hit Game, Score 8 To 5

The Lehigh Cement team took up their stand with the New Castle News and Phalanx teams, as leaders of the New Castle Mushball League. Last night at the Lehigh field, the Cementers made the Tim Mill team accept an 8 to 5 defeat. The game was one of the best played to date in the mushball loop.

Rich on the knoll for the Lehigh team held the Tim wallopers to six hits, and Jenkins and Shackle both tried their hand for the Tim Mill and found the going tough. The Lehigh had twelve hits. The Cementers had two miscues, while the Tim Mill team fielded faultlessly. Gus Thompson, former minor league star and well known catcher, did the backstopping for the winners, and played a great game.

The Lehigh team had three big innings the first, third and fifth when they tallied all of their only 10 runs by innings: R. H. E. Tim Mill . . . 021 101 0-5 6 0 Lehigh . . . 203 030 X-8 12 2 Batteries: Lehigh, Rich and Thompson; Tim Mill, Jenkins, Shackle and Parker.

HERE AND THERE IN SPORTS' LAND

By ED. FRITZ

One of the most humorous ring affairs of some time occurred at Butler when George Perotta met Mickey Fedore. They broke from a clinch and referee Al Grayber tried to cut behind Fedore. Mickey backed up and his feet caught between Grayber's legs. Both went down. They got up hurriedly. Mickey turned to apologize to the referee who waved him away.

Talking about apologizing, why? And why again? A fighter goes into the ring to fight. If another nailed him on the chin when he shoves his hands forward and scored a knockout he would not be able to squeal. The old rule "Protect yourself at all times" should be followed by every fighter. No boxer should do anything for which he believes he should apologize.

MacDonald Smith won the Long Island golf championship at Salisbury Plains when he turned in a score of 286 for the 72 hole course, which is two strokes lower than Gene Sarazen.

Clay Reeves, the city councilman thought he would be first to play golf at the Mundy course. He donned his knicker and took his clubs there yesterday. He found the course too soft.

There will be 13 holes at the Mundy golf and while the regulations will provide nine holes for 50 cents they will be allowed the extra four holes play this season.

W. J. Offutt as general chairman of the golf committee has worked strenuously for months to help municipal golf. He has given time from his own business and his efforts are appreciated.

"Hammer" Sledge is a great name for a preliminary fighter. He is to fight Tom Farrow, the colored whiz.

Danceland Team Trims Cascade

The Danceland team took an 8 to 6 victory over the Cascade A. C. in a City-County League game at the National Radiator field on Wednesday night. The Danceland team scored at least one run in every inning.

C. VanEman, on the knoll for the Danceland team, pitched a fine game, holding the slugging Cascade team to four hits and fanning eight men. Perry was on the hill for the losers and was found for eight hits.

K. VanEman and Agnew had triples, while F. VanEman had a double for the only extra base blows of the game.

Both teams played ragged baseball, with three errors.

Scarney Fights Frankie Florian

Heavyweights Will Go On In Semi-Final To Dugan-Kosky Battle

"HAMMER" SLEDGE TO BOX TOM FARROW

There are few junior lightweights in the middleweight who have turned in more impressive fights than Jack Kosky, the southpaw and Jackie Dugan, Louisville, according to a perusal of their records and when they clash here Monday night there ought to be fireworks.

Kosky defeated Baby Sal, the California flash, Ignacio Fernandez who is now boxing in New York and floored Eddie Shea at Chicago. He topped these bouts off with a wide cut victory over Jack Le Barre on the same card when Canzoneri fought Mandell.

Dugan is a youngster who has been coming by leaps and bounds. His most sensational bid for fame is a victory over Rock Island Mike Dundee. He claims that he understands how to fight southpaws. Tony Herrera backed away when asked to fight the Californian.

Harold Scarney, the heavyweight who dropped Russell Haymaker, beat Joe Dudas and sent Bumbo Myers flying to the floor six times recently will take on Frank Florian, Cleveland. Frank recently held Tiny De-

Bolt to a draw decision but is credited with beating him.

Fast Action Predicted
The semi-final between the heavyweights should be filled with punch and action. Scarney is as fast almost as Billy Jones and possesses a neat left hand. Florian and Harold are good right hand punchers and it would not be surprising were one knocked out cold.

Jack De Neri, Cleveland will oppose Zivie Anthony, a Pittsburgher. Anthony is a new face. They will go six rounds at 128 pounds.

Joe Midway has been improving with lots of work and will be seen in the ring with Joe Juhass of Beaver Falls.

They are middleweights and the show will be opened by Ernest "Hammer" Sledge and Tom Farrow, two colored light-heavyweights.

Sledge when booked declared: "Ah'm not a polished fighter but you all will see some slugging."

He hopes to smack Tom on his curly hair for a knockout then secure a fight with Elmo who has returned to prominence.

The two main bouts will arrive here before the fight. Kosky will work out Saturday at Dime's gym. Dugan will loosen up Sunday.

Italians Top Pennsy Team

Shiek Outpitches Rodenbaugh
And Coates To Take
7 To 6 Victory

The Italian A. A. leaders of the Lawrence County League, took another step in the direction of the pennant on Wednesday night at the E. and A. field in the seventh ward by toppling the Pennsy team, 7 to 6. The game was halted in the sixth on account of darkness.

While Shiek had the better of a mound duel with Rodenbaugh and Coates. Both teams had 11 hits, but Shiek kept them scattered. The Italians had three errors behind Shiek, while the railroaders picked up one chance.

Culbertson, Earl, General and Robinson were the extra base hitters of the game. The Italians had a four-run lead in the first two innings and increased it to six before the Pennsy could get under way. The P. R. R. team came out in the fourth with a pair of runs and made three more in the fifth and added another in the sixth before the game was called.

McCloskey, Rodenbaugh, Henson and Culbertson led the Pennsy team at bat, with two hits apiece.

Rodgers, the Italian center fielder, made a sensational catch in the sixth inning that saved the game for the Italians. Shiek fanned seven men. Shields relieved Shiek in the sixth and caused the Pennsy boys to pop out.

A few reasons Cleveland club is climbing

By WILLIAM RITT
Central Press Sport Editor

NEW YORK, Aug. 8.—Mr. Miller Huggins' current headache is not, as is popularly supposed, due so much to the excellent work of an organization known as the Philadelphia Athletics as it is to the aggravating antics of the currently less important baseball firm of Bradley Brothers, Inc., doing business under the name of the Cleveland Indians.

With the Cleveland Indians playing in some other league, preferably the National, Head Man Huggins and his one-time haughty herd feel that they could handle the Philadelphia Athletics with quite a bit of gusto and a considerable amount of elicit.

I mean—they'd have a lot less to worry over.

But the Indians are in the American league—and there's the rub.

Cleveland delights in lapping the Yankees. Bib Falk, who never shines so brightly against other clubs, has been a wonder against the Yankees.

And then there is Manager Roger Peckinpaugh, who never passes up a chance to give his old head master, Ruggins, a poke in the percentage table.

The Redskinned Ruffians this season have brought more woe upon the champion Yankees than they were supposed to at the start of the campaign. They are New York's pet jinxes and by their ferocious play against the Yankees have virtually presented the Athletics with a bright new pennant.

At last counting the Indians had won ten games from the Yankees and lost but four to them. Chalk some of those Indian wins into the Yankees' victory column and the great lead of the Athletics immediately fades.

Before the season began the Yankees held the Cleveland lightly. Now they tremble visibly at sound of the dread name.

Babe Ruth, in figuring Cleveland's chances last spring, rated them seventh. Perhaps it is in effort to avenge this hideous insult that the Clevelanders have made themselves so formidable when facing the present champions.

However, the real truth is that the Clevelanders are a doggone good ball club, and it has just chanced that they have demonstrated this fact more ably against the Yankees than against some other American league foes.

Take Big Jump

The Cleveland club, thanks to a rather free handling of the Bradley check book, has greatly improved its quality of play. The Redskins, as a result, have scored the greatest advance in standing over their 1928 performance seen in the league this year.

Last season the lads who labor for Manager Roger Peckinpaugh suffered in silence in seventh place. This season they have secured a post in the first division and have visions of ending current play in such an exalted position as second place.

A glance at the averages will give the reason for this. Lew Fonseca, Young Morgan, Bib Falk, Earl Averill, Joe Sewell, Johnny Hodapp are all cracking the sphere at .300 or Banned In State. Pennsylvania Athletic commission, sitting at Philadelphia, yesterday suspended indefinitely Johnny Inhouse a second for Maxie Brown who boxed Frank Monroe last a week ago Monday night. Gent informed the commission that Inhouse's action was detrimental to sports.

Suicide Pact Is Officers' Belief Probing Tragedy

Believe Miss Louise Stine, And Lieutenant Pugh Agreed To Die Together

FORMER SUITOR OF WOMAN TALKS

(International News Service) PITTSBURGH, Aug. 8.—A strange story of a suicide pact that culminated under the lasting energy of a girl cabinet entertainer was revealed by police today as investigation concluded into the deaths of Louise Stine, 30, blonde divorcee, and Police Lieutenant Cletus Belmont Pugh, 31, both of Wilkensburg.

A hopeless love affair between the officer and the girl, who was well known in East End night life, had resulted in the pact, as the "only way out," police learned. It was further complicated by the illness of the police lieutenant's wife.

Former Lover Talks
Nat Gorman, former lover of the girl, who found the bodies yesterday, gave the explanation of the deaths. Worried because Mrs. Stine had appeared to be under the influence of liquor when he met her early Tuesday evening, Gorman poured into her apartment after she failed to answer the doorbell. He saw her lying on the bed, shot to death and the officer, clothed in uniform, stretched on the floor, his service revolver dangling from his lifeless hand.

The suicide pact was made ten days ago, Gorman said, but the officer demurred because of illness of his wife. Two empty bottles of liquor were found on the mantle in the room of the apartment where the bodies were found, police said, giving mute evidence of the fight put up by the girl to lash her policeman lover, if carrying out the pact.

"We would have been out of all our trouble last week, but he weakened," Mrs. Stine told him, Gorman said, the night of the tragedy. "But I won't let him weaken again."

"Murder and suicide," was the cryptic report of the investigators.

Correct this sentence: "We don't expect the traveling public," said the official, "to pay the wages of our porters."

I LOVE TO ENTERTAIN, BUT I HATE TO WASH DISHES....

YOU USE RINSO FOR LAUNDERING—LET ME SHOW YOU HOW EASY IT MAKES DISHWASHING

Grease goes in a flash

see dishes sparkle

NOW you won't mind dishwashing at all! Rinso makes it easy as A-B-C.

A painful of thick Rinso suds — and the biggest pile of dishes is out of the way in no time. These rich, easy suds soak away the grease like magic. A hot rinse, and dishes dry clear without wiping.

Cupful for cupful, Rinso goes twice as far as any up-to-date light-weight soap, because it's concentrated, compact. Creamy, lasting suds.

Spanish War Vets Going To Conneaut

General Rickard To Address Comrades At Campfire Friday Afternoon

Conneaut Lake is the mecca for Spanish War Veterans of the local district today, where the Northwestern Council is holding its sessions, opening this afternoon.

Many New Castle Spanish War vets are in attendance at the sessions. Friday will be the big day of the encampment. A fish fry will be held at noon, followed by a campfire when addresses will be made by prominent Spanish War Vets.

Hon. Frank P. Miller of Meadville will deliver the address of welcome, and the response will be made by President John E. Ritchey of Franklin.

Addresses will also be given by Congressman Thomas C. Cochran of Mercer, and General George C. Rickard of Franklin.

Officers will be named at the sessions Friday and the 1930 meeting place selected.

Several Accidents Reported To Police

Dale Avery, driver of the Pennsylvania Railroad bus between New Castle station and the Seventh ward, reported Wednesday that he was en route north on Liberty street at the end of the street car line. There was a street car at the end of the line also an automobile parked near by. As his machine was passing the automobile, one of the rear doors of the bus opened and struck the car, doing damage to the door and to the automobile.

Mrs. George Sadler of 210 Hillcrest avenue reported Wednesday that she was going east on East Washington street near County Line street, as Mrs. A. A. Flynn of 130 Scott street made a left hand turn into County Line street, with the result that Mrs. Sadler hit the Flynn car with her machine. Some damage was done to both.

J. L. Vogan of 104 Sheridan avenue, reported Wednesday that his machine and that of Dewey Glass of 823 Lathrop street came together at Wallace avenue and Mercer street. Both machines were damaged.

CAR IS STOLEN
According to a report submitted to the McKeesport police yesterday, James R. Gordon of 325 North Mercer street, had his automobile stolen while parked in the downtown section of McKeesport, Wednesday.

ROAMING With Richards

Some News, Some Views, But Mostly Just Observations, Of Interesting Things Around New Castle

Sitting in an office all day is no way to roam around, if one expects to compile anything like an interesting column of things. But until the editor of this great family chronicle gets back from Lake Erie which will be ten days yet, the roaming will be done in a swivel chair. The mileage isn't so heavy in swivel chairs as it is in a car.

It isn't any accident that editors get gray young, or that they lose friends. The ideal editor of a newspaper would be a chap who wasn't married, had no friends, and could go without sleep. With this combination he would be absolutely free to do his job efficiently without fear of offending friends, or having to explain to the wife that he was detained at the office.

An editor's job is an education in human relations. If you don't mind an observation. Through his hands pass hundreds of letters of propaganda every day, letters from button hole manufacturers who thinly veil a load of advertising with a scanty coat of news value. Though his office pass people who want their names in and people who want their names out of the paper.

Let him accommodate someone a dozen times and he is allowed to live. Let him refuse just once and his head is demanded. It's a great life, an interesting life, but for a fellow who craves social contacts, a rather lonely life.

Every day is a complete world in itself. Once that paper hits the street, the editor has sent something out which he can never recall. Whether it is good or bad, interesting or dull, heavy or light, it is gone, never to return.

Able Message At Alliance Services By Rev. Carter

Rev. Thomas Carter delivered an able message Wednesday evening at the special evangelistic services in the Alliance Gospel Tabernacle, Pearson street, on the subject "The Imaginary Way of Meeting Sin Versus God's Way."

Lester Moon played several selections on the trombone which added much to the interest of the services. The congregational singing was led by Martin Walker of Irvington, Pa. Rev. Carter spoke this morning over the radio from Oil City. He will preach each evening this week in the Tabernacle and next week.

The meetings are well attended and much interest is being manifested.

Identify Dead Man As George Burns

It has been definitely established that the man who was killed Wednesday morning by a Pennsylvania freight near the paper mill, had been known around here as George Burns. This, however, it developed according to information received this morning, is not his right name, his correct name, according to a man who saw and identified his body this morning, stating that his name was George McCullough, and that he was a painter by trade.

According to this man, the dead man has a father living in Wilkensburg, Pa. The father was at one time trainmaster of the Union Railroad Company with headquarters at Braddock. Efforts are now being made to get in touch with the father.

The dead man was about 45 years of age and up until about August first had been employed in the kitchen at the Sherrango Valley hospital for a short time.

Arrangements for the burial of the body are being held up pending the securing of further information from Wilkensburg, as to whether or not his father really lives there and whether or not the name of the dead man is George McCullough.

Shaw Grabs Headlines From Laborite Hosts

Shaw with Lady Astor at a literary party given at the titled Parliament member's estate on the Thames (Central Press Cable) LONDON, Aug. 8.—George Bernard Shaw, world-famed dramatist, just turned 73, is snatching the headlines away from the Labor party.

Laborites made the "mistake" of inviting him to lecture at the British Independent Labor party's summer school at Welwyn in Hertfordshire.

As a result he gave them a verbal spanking and spoke up for the downtrodden Conservatives, much to their surprise and delight. C. B. S. always is on the other side, Laborites say with a smile.

Bombs
Here are a few—merely a few—of the latest Shawian bombs:

"MacDonald (prime minister) is one of those who felt in his youth and feels now that socialism is an irresistible force that is bound to advance. He is up against a machine of most tremendous inertia. Calling his audience and himself 'bourgeois Socialists', he added: 'There's not one of you who could be mistaken for a horny-handed son of a daughter of toil. There's hardly any class that understands the working class than our class.'"

"By neglect of window dressing the late government (Conservatives) contrived to convey an impression of childishness and ignorance, which resulted in their being completely discredited."

Saying It to Their Faces
"The Labor party was not exactly popular, but it was the only party that was not unpopular."

"The Communist party is still dreaming and talking a lot of rot about the revolutionary working classes. It is the discontented, idealistic middle class which is revolutionary."

He would solve British unemployment by a four-hour day and nationalization of the coal industry.

And he has the same program for the banking business. But, he concluded, "financiers would deluge the country with blood rather than let the banks go."

Thousands Expected To Attend Joint Business Outing Here

Plans for one of the largest merchant outings ever to take place in this city were announced today by Howard F. Welch, general chairman in charge of arrangements for the first annual corn roast which is to be sponsored by the New Castle Credit Exchange.

The outing will include every retail merchant, other business owners, professional men and all employees.

The date set for the affair is August 22, but just where the outing will take place has not been decided as yet by the executive committee in charge.

The plan by the committee of local business men is to have a huge gathering at which there will be no baskets, no charge, plenty of food and lots of entertainment. Everything will be furnished free of charge by the merchant organizations which are members of the credit exchange and every other business organization, whether a member of the exchange or not, is invited to come and share in the festivities.

Plans are being made by the various committees for plenty of entertainment, there will be games, swimming, dancing, contests of various sorts, and a general outing in every way.

Start at Noon.
The holiday will start at noon and from then on until late evening the outing will be in full swing. Thousands are expected to attend during the afternoon and evening, according to indications at the present time.

There will be gallies and galleons of milk and every kiddie will have the opportunity of imbibing the lacteal fluid to his or her heart's content.

There are some 400 business house organizations affiliated with the credit exchange, and counting wives and families of both employers and the employed this alone will constitute a huge crowd. This group, in addition to the members from other business firms and business organizations are expected to congregate into what will be one of New Castle's largest outing gatherings of the year.

Committees in Charge.
The executive committee in charge is composed of Howard F. Welch, manager of the Empire Finance Co., general chairman; W. F. Campbell of the Campbell Lumber Co. at New Wilmington, C. E. Stock Market Is Listless Today

(By W. S. COUSINS)
NEW YORK, Aug. 8.—The stock market played favorites again today. Outside of a few of the well-known steel and railroad stocks which performed brilliantly for the bulls on a light volume of trading, the market had little to show for its effort. In each of the last six full sessions on the stock exchange as many stocks have dipped to low price levels for the year as have passed into high-price ground, and since Monday the proportion of "new lows" has been steadily increasing.

United States Steel's new 1-2-point jump to 22 1/2 was the feature of the market in the first three hours. Buying of the shares accompanied glowing reports of the intentions of the directors later in the year, none of which could be confirmed, but that there is another favorable readjustment of the steel corporation's under way, there is little doubt, in Wall street and elsewhere.

Cotton prices broke $250 a bale after publication of the government's crop report, showing 15 1-2 million bales as the probable production, and wheat broke 3 1-2 to 4 cents a bushel in Chicago and Winnipeg. Breaks of this kind in the commodity markets always have their effect upon speculative stocks, since many traders are attempting to straddle them all.

Those persons who do not have transportation to the grounds which will be selected for the outing will be taken in cars which will be furnished by the special transportation committee.

Stowaway On Zep
Albert Buschko, 19-year-old baker of Dusseldorf, Germany, who stowed away on the Graf Zeppelin, faces deportation to Germany, where he is punished for his escapade. Albert, now held in a detention house of U. S. immigration bureau at Gloucester, N. J., tired of his prosaic duties of fashioning kuchen and crullers and thought it would be a lark to steal a ride on the transatlantic dirigible, but the Graf's crew couldn't see it that way.

As we understand the circles of Bishop Cannon, a big gun devoted to the cause shouldn't do any private hunting.

Braddock Man Is Accident Victim
(International News Service) PITTSBURGH, Aug. 8.—The Neville Island Road had taken toll of another life today with death of Edward Braddock, 35, passenger in a car driven by Joseph Palencall, who failed to negotiate a turn of the upper end of the road.

Braddock died of his injuries last night in Ohio Valley Hospital. Palencall was seriously injured and taken to the hospital. Both were from Braddock.

Eight persons lost their lives on the same strip of road several years ago when a street car went out of control and crashed.

Check Passer Is Held By Police
(International News Service) PITTSBURGH, Aug. 8.—Basil Scalla, of Braddock, was being held today for trial on charges of obtaining $115 by passing six worthless checks. Justice of the Peace H. G. House, of Braddock, held Scalla after several Braddock merchants testified he gave them checks which were returned marked "not sufficient funds."

State Department Attache Nabbed As Girl Annoyer
(International News Service) WASHINGTON, Aug. 8.—Frederick Dagheret Kellogg Lederer, young state department attache who was arrested on charges of annoying young high school girls, resigned his post today, and it was accepted.

Announcement of the resignation was made a short time before the young diplomat was to appear in police court to answer the charges.

Lederer was arrested by detectives who were investigating complaints of 11 western high school girls that a man persistently annoyed them with advances as they rode to and from their classes on street cars and busses. He spent a night in jail before being released.

The HOOVER
It Beats—As It Sweeps—As It Cleans

Tools that eat DIRT!
Hoover dusting tools live on dirt. Let them but touch the draperies, the walls, the door and window frames—dust is gobbled up. In the corners of the piano and radio, among the radiator coils, in the depth of the upholstery—fluff and dirt are instantly devoured. In the stairs and around the tufts of mattresses, among the books on the book shelves and in the fireplace—they clean out all the dust, lint and elusive bits of dirt.

Let us demonstrate the Hoover and its dusting tools.
